2 U. S. AGENTS SEIZED WITH $250,000 IN RUM

New London, Ct., Jan 5 (I.N.S.).—Liquor valued at $250,000 was seized and eleven men, including two Federal prohibition agents, were arrested on the Thames river highway bridge in Groton today by two State troopers.

The men were held in $5,000 each for trial in the Superior Court after hearing today before Judge Cornelius C. Costello of Groton.

The prisoners gave their names as Clarence M. Lovett and Alex Westerlind, prohibition men: John J. Gaige, Arthur Ryan, Isadore Miller, William St. Pierre, Roger Ferereia, Edward Figuerera, John Parson, Frank Smaral and Conrad Lefante.

The arrests were made by Troopers Henry Albright and George Sisson, who had been ordered to proceed from the Groton State police barracks to the bridge to await a

U. S. PLANE CRASHES IN GUATEMALA; HALTS HOP

Guatemala City, Guatemala, Jan. 5 (A.P.).—The Good Will Pan-American flight was temporarily halted again today when the New York, flagship of the American Army Argosy, made a forced landing on the Aurora flying field soon after the aviators had hopped off for San Salvador.

Major Herbert A. Dargue, flight commander, and his relief pilot, Lieutenant Ennis C. Whitehead, were unhurt, except for slight injuries on their hands, but the plane was damaged.

The four other planes returned immediately to the flying field.

It is expected a week or two will be required for repairs to the New York.

TELLS OF CROOKED GAMES

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Clarence Rowland, former Chicago White Sox manager and present American League umpire, was accused to his face before Judge Landis this afternoon of having conspired to have the Detroit Tigers "slough" a series to the White Sox in September of 1917, when "Swede" Risberg substantially repeated that Rowland had assured him before the games everything was "fixed."

When Risberg came into the room there was a moment of silence as his eyes swept the crowd, picking out Clarence Rowland, Ray Schalk, Donie Bush, some of the men he accused. Without making any explanation of his failure to appear this morning, Risberg plunged into his story.

ACCUSES ROWLAND.

With his head in a half hanging position, and in a fairly audible voice Risberg said the first intimation he had that the Tigers were to throw games to the White Sox was when Rowland, then manager of the club, told him "it was all fixed."

While Risberg was telling his story, Rowland, Eddie Collins and Ray Schalk, Sox players; Donie Bush, George Dauss, Ben Dyer, Oscar Stanage and other Tigers of 1917 sat directly opposite him, almost close enough to shake hands with him.

The former White Sox shortstop then told of collecting $45 from each of the Sox players in New York to

ASKS CHANGE IN FLOATING $2,141,000 "L" BONDS

H. Ware Barnum, counsel for the Elevated, appeared today before the Public Utilities Commission and asked that the road be authorized to change the method of floating bonds to the amount of $2,141,000 previously approved by the commission.

As approved the bonds would be callable at 105 after ten years from issue. If the change is approved the bonds will be callable at 101 after two years from date of flotation. Barnum declared that it would benefit the road financially.

MELLON BLAMED FOR DEATHS BY LA GUARDIA

Washington, Jan. 5 (A.P.).—Responsibility for deaths in New York from poisoned alcohol was placed upon Secretary Mellon and Chester P. Mills, prohibition enforcement director in New York, in a speech in the House today by Representative La Guardia (R.) of New York.

Mills, Mr. La Guardia declared, is "responsible for the diversion of poison alcohol and the resulting deaths."

MOTHER OF DOOMED MAN IS ACCUSED OF REFUSING TO AID TRIO

A brother of Edward J. Heinlein, who is doomed to die at midnight tonight with the two other carbarn slayers, John J. Devereaux and John J. McLaughlin, today accused McLaughlin's mother of firmly refusing to take action that might gain a respite for the condemned men.

The brother, Herbert Heinlein, declared he humbly begged Mrs. Mary McLaughlin on his knees to appeal to Attorney George Douglas, counsel for Peter McLaughlin, to ask the Supreme Court to respite the slayers on the ground that they are wanted as witnesses at the trial of Peter.

"I am willing to sacrifice one son to save the other," answered the mother, according to Herbert Heinlein, taking the stand that the doomed carbarn slayers would be hostile witnesses at Peter McLaughlin's trial for the same crime.

The dramatic meeting between young Heinlein and Mrs. McLaughlin took place at State Prison, just after the mother left the death house where she said a last farewell to her son.

MELLON TO TELL WHY ALCOHOL IS POISONED

Washington, Jan. 5 (I.N.S.).—The government's alcohol denaturing policy, widely assailed as responsible for hundreds of "poison liquor" deaths in the holidays, will be explained in detail to Congress within a day or two by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Mellon's report, virtually completed today after conferences with Gen. L. C. Andrews, dry chief, and Treasury chemists, is in response to a Senate resolution demanding an explanation.

The report also will show what pressure was brought on the Treasury by the Anti-Saloon League and may outline conversations between Mellon and Wayne B. Wheeler, the League's general counsel.

McLAUGHLIN'S SISTERS AT PRISON
Two leaving death house in Charlestown after saying farewell to doomed brother.

GRIEF HANGS OVER THIS HOME

A SORROW-BURDEN MOTHER HOPES

CHAIR MADE READY FOR DEATH

At that moment, as daylight faded for the last time for the slayers, the doomed men were fervently begging God's forgiveness in their death cells and preparing to die within a few hours in the electric chair.

The attorney representing Peter McLaughlin, who was arrested after the other carbarn holdup men were condemned to death, has refused to ask that the doomed slayers be kept alive as necessary witnesses for the defence.

"I begged Mrs. McLaughlin on my bended knees to take action t move the lawyer," said Herbert Heinlein.

"She refused. She said she was ready and willing to sacrifice one son to save the other. She also said that she would do nothing to save my brother, that he called Peter a vile name.

"I told her that was untrue. I believe her refusal is the result of a pact with the district attorney to save Peter McLaughlin after the others are executed.

RESPONSIBLE, HE SAID.

"I told Mrs. McLaughlin that she, then, and not Devereaux would be responsible for their deaths tonight, if she did not force Douglas to act."

Attorney Francis A. Juggins, counsel for the slayers in their fight for life, said he has been told by Attorney Douglas that nothing could be done but he said he was ready to confer with Douglas, to urge him to take action that "would mean a respite," if a meeting could be arranged by neutral parties.

Attorney Douglas earlier in the day intimated that he was willing to confer about the matter but Juggins said that he was given to understand otherwise when he spoke over the telephone to Peter McLaughlin's counsel.

An eleventh-hour effort to save the slayers by concerted action among the Governor's executive councillors failed today.

The men appear to be doomed, without a trace of hope.

The men are doomed and there is no hope left.

Governor's Councillor George E. Curran contemplated making an impassioned plea for the lives of the three men at the council meeting today, but after he had canvassed the members and sounded out their views, he found himself the condemned men's only champion.

The last farewells of mothers and fathers, brothers and sisters, at the deathhouse, came to an end before dusk closed down on the grim-walled State Prison and then the final preparations for the triple execution were begun by wan-faced guards on whom the strain was telling.

A barber went to the cells to shave smooth a spot on the top of each man's head where the fatal electrode will be placed by the executioner.

The left leg of each man's trousers was ripped for six inches up the seam to make way for the second electrode which completes the circuit of death in the living body.

In the kitchen of the prison hospital, chefs prepared a special supper for the carbarn trio's last meal.

Father Michael J. Murphy, Catholic chaplain of the prison, and two other priests talked with the three men to take their minds off their approaching death, as these arrangements went swiftly on.

Just before the new day is born at midnight, a guard will go to the death cells.

"The time has come. Are you ready?"

Ready they must be.

The chaplain will hear their last confessions and as they kneel, he will bless and forgive them, one by one. The men will then receive Holy Communion in their cells.

In quick succession the men will walk out into the death chamber—first Heinlein, then Devereaux, the actual killer; then McLaughlin, who did not carry a gun but who must pay for his companion's act on the murder night. A white-surpliced priest, Father Murphy, will lead them.

MOTHERS IN PRAYER.

The three mothers of the doomed youths wept and prayed alternately throughout the rapidly passing last day.

The Devereaux family were the first to say the last good-bys at the death house. While Father Murphy stood near by, Devereaux's mother held his hand through the small aperture in the screened front of the cell, while his trembling lips mumbled encouragement to her.

Tears streaming down her face, she left, followed by her daughter, Cathleen, who accompanied her on this last visit.

Devereaux's brother, Billy, and another sister, were the next to say good-bye, and then the sorrowful father of the condemned youth went in with a third sister. All left the prison in an automobile, choking with sobs.

"I cannot speak," whispered Mrs. Nora Heinlein, mother of Edward J. Heinlein, as she arrived at the prison with her husband and a nurse. They waited until the Devereaux family had left.

Their son, like Devereaux, spent most of the farewell moments trying to cheer up his parents and encourage them for the final ordeal.

Even as the execution hour approached, burial arrangements had to be made, these being attended to by friends of each family. A short time after the men are officially pronounced dead their bodies will be released by the State, the life forfeit having been claimed and paid.

"Thrice at the hour of midnight."

These words of Stevenson's famous opening lines in "Ticonderoga" aptly apply to the [illegible] old [illegible] to be performed inside the gray walls at Charlestown.

At that hour a police wall "of blue and brass" will line the sidewalk outside the gates to keep in check the morbid crowd.

Each man will have his own spiritual adviser with him until the final seconds in the chair when Father Murphy, prison chaplain, will alone hear the last whispered words of each man.

In addition to Father Murphy the priests who spent most of the day with the three are: the Rev. James L. Davey of St. Mary's Church, and the Rev. Charles L. White of St. Stephen's Church, North End.

It is probable that Warden Hendry granted the men another day of life on the plea of Frank Manning of the clemency committee, who saw a glimmer of hope in a new appeal that he wished to bring before the Governor.

The man who has worked so hard in the interests of the condemned men finally prevailed on Governor Fuller to grant him an eleventh-hour conference. He presented the final plea, but met from the chief executive of the State the same adamantine refusal that every other plea has encountered.

The only solace left to the mothers is the caring for the bodies of their sons. As each is pronounced dead the body will be claimed by parents, and each will be given a private funeral from the Brighton church which the youths attended during life.

News that the triple execution is to take place after midnight tonight came from sources other than the prison officials, as the rules do not permit the warden to inform anyone, except the legal witnesses, as to the time of execution.

Among the witnesses who will be present in the chamber of death, besides the warden and deputy warden, are Surgeon-General Frank P. Williams, M. N. G., Medical Examiner George Burgess Magrath, Dr. Joseph I. McLaughlin, prison physician and surgeon; Sheriff John R. Fairbairn, a representative of the press and several witnesses selected by Warden Hendry.

REMORSE SWAYS CARBARN 3, NOT FEAR

"I'm all ready to go, Father, but the hard part for me is the trouble I've brought my folks and Ferneau's people."

With these words, the three slayers, Devereaux, Heinlein and McLaughlin, who die tonight in the electric chair, revealed to the prison chaplain that remorse and not fear is uppermost in their minds.

Father Murphy spent two hours with them, bringing them spiritual consolation, and he was immeasurably impressed by their eleventh-hour attitude.

When one of the trio spoke of his remorse for the suffering and anguish caused his own folks and the household of the murdered man, the others chimed in with:

"That's what hits me hardest, too, Father."

After the chaplain left, the condemned men read until after midnight.

At that significant hour, just 24 hours removed from an ignominious death, they knelt in prayer beside their cots in the narrow death-house cells, as a guard switched off the overhead lights and tiptoed back to his chair against the wall.

"All three men spoke over and over of their regrets, but otherwise seem well fortified for the end," said Father Murphy. "During the evening they wrote many letters.

"They will not receive the last communion until shortly before midnight tonight, when the most trying moments of all these long months finally arrive. I believe they will be brave, strengthened by firm spiritual faith in forgiveness."

Slayers to Have Dainty Dishes for Last Meal

The carbarn slayers' last meal will be a special one prepared in the hospital kitchen at State prison, where the best of food and the best means of preparing it tastily are available.

It is Warden Hendry's wish to strengthen the three men physically as much as possible, and also to divert their attention from the nearness of death.

Shortly after 6 o'clock they will eat their last meal on earth, and though it will consist of delicacies, they will have to eat with the customary wooden spoons that are the safeguard at the deathhouse against suicide attempts.

Bacon and eggs, toast and coffee, which all ate heartily, comprised the menu at today's breakfast, and for dinner the men were served lamb chops, potatoes, bread and butter, apple pie and coffee.

SLAYERS JOKE WITH RABBI IN DEATH HOUSE

A Jewish rabbi visited the three condemned "carbarn slayers" in the State Prison death house today—and the condemned men joked with him.

He was Rabbi Moses L. Sedar, Jewish spiritual adviser for public institutions, and he was taken to visit Devereaux, Heinlein and McLaughlin by the adviser of their own faith, Fr. Michael J. Murphy, prison chaplain.

While Rabbi Sedar was there Devereaux went through the ordeal of attempting to solace his weeping father and sister Catherine, while Heinlein later was exhorting his mother and father to be brave and not to mourn him.

Yet when these moving moments had passed and the relatives were gone for the last time, Devereaux and McLaughlin greeted the rabbi and joked with him, he said.

"I found the boys in good physical and mental condition, considering the circumstances," the rabbi told reporters when he had emerged from the death house.

"I was very much impressed at the attitude of McLaughlin, who seemed cheerful and who joked with me. He seemed well posted in the Bible and mentioned Solomon, the wisest man, as he who said, 'While there is life there is hope.' He smiled when he mentioned Solomon.

"Mr. Devereaux, senior, and one of his daughters were there. I noticed the father was crying, but trying to conceal his tears from his son.

"Devereaux told me he heard a pretty good joke involving Fr. Murphy and me. He said, 'I heard Fr. Murphy invited you to breakfast and served steak and bacon and that you started eating the bacon before you realized it. Fr. Murphy had it as a great joke.'

"He said that Fr. Mahar visited him just before the respite last August. We sent for Fr. Mahar.

"The Heinleins, father, mother and boy, were bearing up very well while I was there and Heinlein was comforting his mother."

Son Ready for Death, Says Mrs. Devereaux

Hopelessly and drearily, with flagging footsteps and hanging heads, too sad for tears, Mrs. Sarah Devereaux and her daughters, May and Therese, left their Brighton home today on their last pilgrimage to the grim death-house at State's Prison.

After months of alternate hope and despair, the three faithful women were prepared to say their last farewells to their youthful son and brother, John J. Devereaux, facing death in the electric chair in the early hours of tomorrow morning.

Up early after a sleepless night, Mrs. Devereaux and the girls attended 8:30 mass and then returned to their Strathmore road home for breakfast, at which Frank J. Manning, secretary of the clemency committee, joined them.

Then began the preparations for the fateful journey leading up to Gethsemane for the three women. Little was said, for the crisis in their lives had passed beyond words. A slight consolation existed in the fact that young "Joe" was bearing himself like a man, fronting his fate bravely.

"He has always been ready to take his medicine," said Mrs. Devereaux dully, to which the girls murmured assent.

Going down the street, its sidewalks ice-coated and slippery, the daughters supported their mother, one on either side. Mrs. Devereaux wore a black coat with black fur collar, a large black velvet hat and glasses. They proceeded slowly, carefully, choosing their steps.

The girls wore muskrat coats that of May covering a brown crepe de chine dress with high collar trimmed with gold, the dress harmonizing with her long brown hair. Theresa's dress was black with a touch of red, with a small hat on her black bobbed hair.

On their return from the prison the women were to spend the remainder of the day and the hours of the night in prayer.

Before their departure Frank Manning reviewed his eleventh-hour interview with Governor Fuller. At one time, he said, he thought he had moved the Governor, but learned his effort was in vain.

He said the Governor, with whom was Attorney-General Jay R. Benton, listened to everything Manning had to say, but announced he saw no reason for taking any action. Manning said the Governor refused to comment on Devereaux's mental condition.

Rev. Richeson Sang as He Went to Chair

Most dramatic of all electrocutions at Charlestown State Prison, until the present one, was that of Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, May 21, 1912.

Singing hymns, he walked to the chair.

Richeson is the only death-house inmate who ever raised his voice in song in that dreaded place.

The minister paid with his life for the murder of Avis Linnell, whom he tricked into swallowing deadly poison so that he could dispose of her and her unborn child in order to marry another girl. He confessed and was sentenced to death.

As the hour approached, he sat in his cell and sang, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," and other hymns. He sang as the legal witnesses assembled.

"Come, Mr. Richeson, the time has arrived. Are you ready now?" he was interrupted by a guard.

"Yes, I am ready."

Finishing the last hymn as he started, he then read from a Bible that was held before him as he walked steadily to the chair. Then followed the series of questions that were intended to divert his mind from his fate.

The last question was:

"Are you willing to live or die for Jesus' sake?"

"I am willing to live or d-i-e," said Richeson, and as he said the word "die" the current shot into his body at a signal from Warden Bridges.

MOTHER TAKES FINAL LEAVE OF M'LAUGHLIN

Her racking sobs interspersed with choking moans, the heartbroken mother bade a last farewell to her boy, who goes to death in the electric chair shortly after midnight tonight.

Exhausted by the tremendous strain, leaning heavily on her two devoted daughters, Marie and Morine, Mrs. McLaughlin made a brave but pitiful attempt to maintain her composure.

"Remember the martyrs and their torturers, Johnny," she quavered. "You didn't kill anyone," she added and then broke into spasm of wild weeping.

The condemned man patted his mother's hands and murmured soothing words, apparently forgetful of self and only desirous of alleviating in some measure the agony she suffered.

"BORE UP WONDERFULLY."

"Johnny bore up wonderfully," Mrs. McLaughlin told the Boston Evening American between sobs as her daughters led her from the death house at the conclusion of a 20-minute visit.

All three were crying softly as they made their slow way along the walk leading to the jail office. Mrs. McLaughlin's face was drawn and lined with anguish, and stained with tears, but she spoke proudly of her boy.

"He comforted me," she said. "I didn't know what to say to the poor boy. I could hardly speak. He was much the stronger. I told him to remember the martyrs and their torturers, and that he didn't kill anyone. He asked only my prayers."

Her head drooped, and supported on each side by her daughters, she stumbled into the jail office, there to rest for a few minutes and pull herself together preparatory to the journey home.

OUTLOOK DRAB TO HER.

To the anguished mother's heart it was a dull, drab future that stretched before her with the boy she had brought into the world torn from her arms by the law and put to death as a murderer.

Heretofore there had been hope to buoy her up, but now there was nothing to look forward to but death, which ends all things and heals broken hearts.

The next visitors received by John McLaughlin were his wife, Annie, and his sister, Mrs. Mona McLean. The brother, James, was to be the last member of the family to gaze on John's face in life.

Emerging from the death house at State Prison today, following her final sight of her son and the last farewell, Mrs. Nora Heinlein said that all three of the condemned youths are ready to die tonight.

With her in her last visit to the grim prison were her husband, Henry Heinlein, and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harry Heinlein, bride of two weeks.

When they came out, after spending an hour and a half in the death house, Mrs. Heinlein's eyes were dry. The eyes of Edward's father, however, and the eyes of his sister-in-law were wet and their lips still quivered under stress of their emotion.

With her Mrs. Heinlein carried a telegram, received from her other son, the bridegroom, who said he was leaving Palm Beach, Fla., for home. Through this telegram she sought a stay of execution from Warden Hendry, but the warden said he was powerless.

"I can't cry because I left my boy and the other boys too happy," said Mrs. Heinlein when she entered the warden's office. "They are resigned to their fate.

"Edward said to me, 'Be brave, mother. I want you to be courageous as you have been right through. I am ready to die if the people demand that we pay this debt. The other boys feel as I do. We are ready, but I don't want you to feel too badly.'

"I did not shed a tear. Much as I wanted to, I thought it was my duty to keep back my feelings and, somehow, Eddie was so brave that he gave me courage not to break down. I never saw such fortitude. I did not think it was possible under the circumstances.

"I am a heart-broken mother, but you see I am bearing up. I am doing that for Edward. God knows, it is hard. He did not kill anybody. That is my only consolation in this darkest hour.

"While I was there, Devereaux asked me if I would not send word to the Rev. Fr. Joseph P. Mahar, chaplain at the Concord Reformatory. He said he wanted to see him this afternoon, as he had met the chaplain while Devereaux was in the Navy during the war.

WHEN I RECOVERED FROM MY fainting spell I found the servants bending over my chair solicitously. I collected my thoughts quickly. This was no time for weakness. A murder had been committed, and steps must be taken quickly if the criminal was to be apprehended. I ordered the servants to call Berkeley Street Police Headquarters and Charles. I was all alone now. This was a trying hour and I needed the help of an understanding man.

CHARLES CAME QUICKLY. HE TOOK in the situation at a glance and then took care of all the unpleasant detail. He took me in his arms. "Doris, who could have thought that all our happiness would be blasted so soon? There is nothing you can do for your father now—it is too late. You must try to bear up under your sorrow. I want you to feel that I will help you and care for you." I threw my head on his shoulder and wept.

A HEADQUARTERS DETECTIVE HAD already arrived. He tried to determine a motive for the crime. "Was there anything of value in this room—money or jewels?" he asked. I told him there was a hidden wall safe at the end of the room, but that no one knew the combination except father and I. Charles and I walked over to the safe with him. There was a click—the door opened—but nothing was missing.

THEN THE DETECTIVE QUESTIONED the servants. He insisted that it was necessary, that they might be able to throw some light on the mystery. He began with John and asked John what he had done that night before the crime. John told him that he had locked the door after I returned and then had gone to see if father wanted anything. "What was Mr. Alton doing when you entered the room?" the detective asked. (Continued tomorrow.)

DAZZLED ELITE OF NEWPORT BY HER BEAUTY

Newport, R. I., Jan. 5.—Stripped of her possessions—even of the beauty that lifted her from a second-rate boarding house into the glitter of high society—the Countess Bela Zichy is dead in Budapest, it was reported in Newport today.

The Countess originally was known in Newport as Mabel Wright, a dazzling beauty, who suddenly appeared one day at Naragansett Pier in an exquisite gown and a perfect poise and stepped into society.

It came out that pretty Mabel had saved all her meagre earnings as a slavey to buy that gown and others for her "one grand fling" and was amazed to find herself accepted without question as to her antecedents.

Through Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, then Mrs. William Kissam Vanderbilt, she met Fernando Yznaga, brother of Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester, who had just taken an option on a divorce from Mrs. Vanderbilt's sister.

Yznaga, a sugar planter, got his divorce and married Mabel Wright, but they disagreed after a time and then Mabel married Count Bela Zichy, member of one of Hungary's oldest families.

To them was born a son, Count Edward Zichy, who, three years ago, gave New York a sensation when he eloped with Charlotte Demarest and they were married at the New York municipal building an hour before she was due to be married at a church wedding to George Burton.

Two Dead in Ship Blast

STOP WATCH ON APPLICANTS IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 5 (A.P.)—Stop watches were used by the telephone company today to decide the relative position of competitors in the race to talk with London by radio telephone.

Although hundreds of applications had been received by mail in recent weeks for the first call when the new service opens Friday, none was accepted. Everyone was placed on an even footing by an announcement that applications must be made by telephone not earlier than 8:30 o'clock this morning.

At 8:30 it immediately was apparent that the preparations had been necessary. Calls for long distance came to operators in exchanges all over the city from business men, banks, newspapers, press associations, members of practically every industry and profession, all pleading for the privilege of being first.

"Eight hours, thirty minutes, no seconds," the first call was marked. "Eight hours, thirty minutes, one-fifth second," was the next. And so, on and on and on.

Just how many calls were accepted officials of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, which is inaugurating the service in conjunction with the British post office, would not say.

But it was admitted that in the first hour enough calls had been made to assure a solid stream of talk passing over the air for the entire "working day" of the new service on Friday.

In the order of their receipt today the calls will be put through, beginning at 8.30 o'clock Friday morning and ending at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

Each call will be limited to 12 minutes as long as there is any one else waiting for a connection. The charge is $25 a minute with a $75 minimum charge.

Practically all of the persons putting in calls today wanted to be the first. A few cancelled their calls when told they could not head the list.

HAL BRODA WON HER

Polly K. Moser, vocal and piano student at Conservatory of Music, thinks two enough for a team, and Hal Broda of Brown is one of them and she the other. Their romance began last Spring at a house party in Providence. She is daughter of Judge and Mrs. Fred B. Moser of Shamokin, Pa.

COOLIDGE SAYS 'NO CRUISERS'

Washington, Jan. 5 (A. P.)—In the face of the gathering storm in Congress over enlargement of the American navy, President Coolidge today reaffirmed his opposition to the construction of new cruisers at the present time.

In a letter to Chairman French of the House sub committee considering naval appropriations, the President said the budget's recommendations, omitting funds for the new ships "represents my best judgment" and added that he felt it his duty to stand by that recommendation.

After listening to Admiral Bloch's testimony, Representative Vinson of Georgia, ranking Democrat on the naval committee, and Representative Britten, Republican, Illinois, said they would demand the full ten be authorized in addition to last year's [illegible]

FOLEY, SWORN IN BY FULLER, MEETS JURORS

District Attorney William J. Foley of Suffolk County started the machinery of his office today within a short time after taking his oath from Governor Fuller at the State House.

Upon arriving at the courthouse, he shook hands with as many as possible of the men and women gathered there to congratulate him, smiled at the many floral tokens of good luck and stepped into Superior Court to listen to the instructions given the grand jury by Judge Frederick W. Fosdick.

Mr. Foley, with his principal assistants, William H. McDonnell and Frederick M. J. Sheenan, was seated in the inclosure assigned to the district attorney. Mr. Foley addressed the court briefly, telling Judge Fosdick that he and his assistants had taken the oath before Governor Fuller, and the clerk was instructed to make a record of the fact.

Judge Fosdick then instructed the grand jurors as to their duties. He said that he would be very deliberate in what he said, which was not only for the benefit of the jurors but also for several of the assistant district attorneys, who had not such experience as they were now called upon to begin.

About the same time that District Attorney Foley and his ten assistants were sworn in at the State House, Governor Fuller also gave the oath of office to District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell of the Northern District of Middlesex County.

Rahnghild Wndt'Wriedt, 21, declared by the police to be the daughter of a Danish nobleman, was arraigned today in Central Court, with Arthur W. Curtis, Boylston street photographer, both charged with being present where morphine and hypodermic needles were found. She is an artist's model, and was arrested in a raid on Curtis' studio. Judge Zottoli held each in $1,000.

QUIGLEY'S DAD LOSES JOB IN CHELSEA, TOO

Fourteen employes of the building inspector's department of Chelsea, including Patrick J. Quigley, father of ex-Mayor Lawrence Quigley, were discharged by Mayor John J. Whalen of that city today.

Previously, the new mayor had removed Inspector Thomas J. Quigley, brother of the former mayor, from the police department.

Mayor Whalen announced the removal of these employes would mean a saving of $22,880 a year and is merely a start.

The men removed today, in addition to Mayor Quigley's father, and the salaries they draw, are: Thomas McCauley, janitor, $1,820; Harrison Manor, carpenter, $1,820; Joseph Orlando, laborer, $,1560; Thomas Bullock, sweeper, $1,560; Peter H. Morse, plumber, $1,820; Jerome McCarthy, laborer, $1,560; Joseph Carlon, laborer, $1,560; Joseph Shuckrow, laborer, $1,560; George Blake, plumber's helper, $1,560; James Hanlon, Jr., laborer, $1,560; James E. Neilon, laborer, $1,560; John Finkle, laborer, $1,560.

ROSES FOR SHERIFF ON HIS 28TH ANNIVERSARY

Samuel H. Capen, sheriff of Norfolk County and the grand old man of Dedham Court House, was greeted with twenty-eight beauty roses today as he approached his desk. The occasion was the twenty-eighth anniversary of his appointment to that office. The sheriff is seventy-six, but one would never know it, as he starts on his fiftieth year of service as a deputy and sheriff.

He was appointed a deputy by Sheriff Rufus C. Wood in 1878

COOLIDGE CRITICS AT WHITE HOUSE BREAKFAST

Washington, Jan. 5 (I.N.S.).—President Coolidge continued the policy of breaking bread with his severest critics today.

Breakfast guests at the White House included Senators Ashurst (D.) of Arizona, Frazier (R.) of North Dakota, read out of the party a year ago for insurgency; Dill (D.), of Washington and Rep. Brigham (R.) of Vermont. Ashurst, Dill and Frazier have frequently criticised Mr. Coolidge and his policies on the Senate floor.

WADSWORTH ON 'L' CONTROL COMMITTEE

One of the most prized plums in the way of committee assignments in the House was today handed by Speaker John C. Hull to a first year man, Representative Eliot Wadsworth of Boston. Before this committee will be threshed out the future control and financing of the Boston Elevated. The Senate chairman is George D. Chamberlain of Springfield.

To the Speaker's cabinet, the committee on rules, were assigned Jewett of Lowell, Achin of Lowell, Hays of Boston, Washburn of Worcester, Green of Cambridge, Saltonstall of Newton, Griggs of Springfield, Clemons of Wakefield, Meins of Boston, E. J. Kelley of Worcester, Warren of Lawrence and Fitzgerald of Boston.

The Senate Committee on Rules consists, in addition to President Wells of Boston, of Bliss of Malden, Moran of Mansfield, Gallup of North Adams, Wregg of Needham, Webber of East Bridgewater and Mulvey of Suffolk.

Representative Henry L. Shattuck of Boston and Senator Walter E. McLane of Fall River again head the committee on ways and means, and Representative Martin Hays of Boston was re-assigned as House chairman of the committee on judiciary. Senator Walter Shuebruk of Cohasset is judiciary chairman on the Senate side.

Pupil Sets School on Fire Just to See the Excitement

Springfield, Jan. 5 (A.P.).—Chief W. H. Daggett of the fire department today began an investigation of a fire that broke out in a basement closet of the large Forest Park Junior High School yesterday. The chief believes it was incendiary.

A pupil is thought to have set the fire for love of excitement.

RISK MEN LOCK TAXI METERS, HOLD KEYS

A storm of indignation was raised today by independent taxicab owners when it was learned insurance companies "compelled" fifteen of them to equip their cars with hub-meters to insure compliance with the new compulsory insurance law.

Pointing out that the companies kept possession of the key to the hub-meters attached to the left front wheel of the cars, owners declared in the event of burned bearing or other trouble in that wheel, they cannot proceed until the insurance company's agent arrives to break the seal and open the lock.

$150 IS MINIMUM.

"Fifteen of them were compelled to accept the hub-meters," said an owner near City Hall. "It's murder. What's a man going to do if his wheel goes Democratic? He'll do no business until someone arrives with a key."

Under the provisions of the new law, every owner of a taxicab must pay 1½ cents for each mile of travel. The minimum cost is $150, which must be paid whether the car is driven one mile or 8,000.

ADD DIME TO FARE.

To offset the insurance charge, virtually every concern and independent owner added 10 cents to each trip. The last to adopt this policy was Cummings Bros., owners of the Yellow cabs.

Defending the increase in rates, John Rockett, president of the Town Taxi Company, said his company voted the raise after long discussion, having in mind public interest.

"By adding ten cents to the fare, we hope to take in not more than will pay for insurance. We are going to try that procedure and only time will tell what changes may be made," said Mr. Rockett.

COL. HUME PICKED FOR COLLECTOR AT PORTLAND

Portland, Me., Jan. 5 (A. P.)—Frank M. Hume, postmaster of Houlton, Me., has been recommended by Senators Hale and Gould to succeed Carl E. Milliken as collector of the port of Portland, the Portland Press Herald says in a dispatch from Washington.

Col. Hume has been prominent for years in military and political life, having served in the Spanish war and on the Mexican border in 1915 and in command of the 103rd Regiment, Yankee Division, in the World War, won the Croix de own country.

HUB HOLDS 2D PLACE IN PORT COLLECTIONS

While foreign imports decreased $15,000,000 during 1926, Uncle Sam in Boston gathered in $3,000,000 more than the year 1925 in duties during the past year, retaining second place in imports in the ports of the country.

The absence of new wool in the imports and the large drawings from bonded warehouses on wool previously received is given for the difference by Collector W. W. Lufkin. Such shipments placed in bond are not subject to duty until the date of withdrawal from the warehouse.

Exports dropped nearly $7,000,000 during the past year, according to the annual report.

The year 1926 showed miports of $305,594,508 against $321,563,908 for the previous yeard. Duties collected in the past year amounted to $53,801,959, against $50,651,405 in 1925, and exports showed $40,630,218 for 1926 and $47,493,886 for 1925.

"Phantom Stabber" Suspect Says He Can't Remember

Bridgeport, Ct., Jan. 5 (A.P.).—Protesting he is not the "Phantom stabber" who has terrorized young women of this city for more than a year, Joseph H. Lefever, 55, a machinist, had his case continued in city court today when he was arraigned on a charge of striking Miss Katherin L. Fitzpatrick, principal of Maplewood school.

Lefever said he could not remember having struck Miss Fitzpatrick but witness identified him as the man who knocked her into the street.

RAPS GARY FOR OPPOSING BEER

Washington, Jan. 5 (A.P.)—Elbert H. Gary of the United States Steel Corporation drew the fire today of W. H. Stayton, national chairman of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, who assailed him particularly for his expressed view that the Volstead law had benefited American workmen.

"No one can question," said Stayton in a formal statement, "that it is not only the right but the duty of the officers of the Steel Corporation or for the corporation itself to do anything it can to increase the effectiveness of the work of its employes.

"But when a corporation asks the government to intervene and to deprive a workman of his pleasures and amusements, or even of his bad habits, in order that the corporation and its stockholders may get better results from its workmen, it is treading on very dangerous ground.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches rub on good old Musterole.

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

KELLOGG FACES NICARAGUA QUIZ

Washington, Jan. 5 (A.P.).—Secretary Kellogg is to be invited to appear before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for questioning regarding American military activities in Nicaragua.

In announcing today an American Marine Guard had been ordered to Managua, capital of Nicaragua, the State Department disclosed that British and Italian diplomatic representatives there had requested outside protection for their nationals.

The movement follows announcement at the White House that President Coolidge was solicitous to protect the lives and property of Americans engaged in commercial enterprises in Nicaragua and to safeguard rights granted the United States under its treaty with Nicaragua providing for American rights in perpetuity for construction of an inter-oceanic canal and for establishment of American naval bases in Nicaragua to protect both the Panama canal and the Nicaraguan

NEW RUM ROW IN CONGRESS

Washington, Jan. 5 (A.P.).—The recent statement of Representative Celler, Democrat, New York, that members of Congress "drink, and drink to excess," precipitated another row over prohibition today on the House floor.

Cellar himself revived the subject by asking permission to explain why this statement did not appear in the record. Representative Cramton, Republican, Michigan, one of the dry leaders, said he would object unless Celler assured him he would not make further assertions that would "bring this body into disrepute."

ASKED TO APOLOGIZE

To this Celler agreed, but before he could proceed, Representative Brand, Democrat, Georgia, asked the New York member if he intended to apologize.

"I do not," answered Celler. "I stand by my guns."

"The time has come," shouted Cramton, "when the membership of the House ought not further to permit such attacks to go unchallenged."

Denying that he had brought disrepute on the House, Cellersaid the phrase "drink, and dring to excess" had been made in the heat of debate, aand that in reading his remarks he "softened" the words but not the "import."

DRINKINK DENIED.

As his speech appeared in the record it said: "Many members of this House and the other chamber drink."

Cramton insisted Cellar had given the wrong impression to the country.

"There is no drinking by drys in this House to any appreciable extent," Cramton said. "Any impression to the contrary is wrong."

One Senator Takes Oath of Office in Hub Hotel

Shuebruk was not in the Senate Chamber when the members took the oath of office, and therefore was prevented from taking his seat later.

When the session had adjourned, Shuebruk went to a downtown hotel where the Governor and council were having their weekly luncheon and there took the oath

KEPT HUB 'DRY,' SAYS CROWLEY

A flood of letters asking Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley for an explanation of what the writers term "broadcast" to the effect that the prohibition bars would be let down for liquor drinkers on New Year's Eve in Boston, has stirred the police head to issue a statement denying such was the case.

According to Superintendent Crowley the law was enforced as rigidly as possible and he points to the fact that more than 200 arrests were made in the city for drunkenness.

In addition hundreds of flasks were taken away from diners in restaurants and hotel dining rooms, and destroyed, the police head says. There were also numerous arrests for illegal transportation, possession and sales.

Not only was this true of the city police, but includes activities of the State and Federal officers.

In closing, Superintendent Crowley says that the liquor laws were enforced better than in any previous year and that any claim that the police of Boston were not on the job is not so.

FINDS $110 OF LOOT FROM GOODWIN QUINCY OFFICE

Checks and currency amounting to $110 and a number of papers, believed to be part of the $500 loot taken from the safe of the Quincy Registry of Motor Vehicles early yesterday, were recovered in an alley a stone's throw from Quincy square today. Patrick Murphy, a janitor, made the discovery.

$46,800,000 CIVIL WAR WIDOWS' PENSION BILL

Washington, Jan. 5 (A.P.).—The Elliott bill to increase pensions of Civil War veterans' widows or remarried widows, from $30 to $50 a month was reported today to the House. The increase amounts to $46,800,000 and would affect 195,000.

OTIS CO. TO STAY IN WARE

Stockholders of the Otis Company today voted approval of the decision of directors of the company to retain their plants in Ware, Palmer, and Bondsville, Mass., and Greenville, N. H.

The plan of continued operation of the New England plants of the Otis Company involves no time limit, but it is understood that the arrangement will be permanent if promised reductions in taxation and further co-operation on the part of employes take place.

CROSSING TENDER IS KILLED AT READING

Hidden by a cloud of steam from a freight locomotive on a siding near the Reading depot, Hugh C. Cunningham, 61-year-old crossing tender, was struck and killed by a Boston & Maine shifting engine today.

Cunningham, who was employed nights at the Woburn street crossing, Reading, was on his way home, walking the tracks.

Cunningham was unmarried and lived at No. 50A Mt. Vernon street, Reading. He is survived by a brother, Henry, also employed by the Boston & Maine.

300 YANKEES IN PERIL IN CHINA

Pekin, Jan. 5 (I.N.S.)—Serious reactions, and possible revolt, are feared today as the result of th. killing of two Chinese by a pair of joyriding American marines. The marines ran down the natives while speeding in an automobile stolen from Colonel Little, commandant of the legation guard.

Shanghai, Jan. 5.—United States gunboats today anchored off Hankow, where thousands of coolies have staged anti-foreign demonstrations, bringing about a serious crisis.

All women and children in the danger zone have been ordered to embark on waiting ships, preparatory to leaving port in case the situation grows more tense.

All available British warships, including the Vindictive, Carlisle and Wishart, have been ordered to the scene.

The British admiralty also announced today that the eighth destroyer flotilla has been brought to full strength for possible service in the district.

At present the flotilla is attached to the Atlantic fleet and consists of eight destroyers, including its leader, the Bruce.

There are 300 Americans in the danger zone, according to official estimates. So far as known there has been no demonstration directed at the U. S. Consulate in Hankow up to date.

An official dispatch from Nanking says the city of Wuhu, Anhwei province, about 500 miles up the Yangtze river from Shanghai, has been looted, presumably by northern troops.

Detailed reports from Hankow, where the British colony is being besieged by the infuriated coolies, show the situation is growing increasingly serious and indicate that the angry natives are out of control of the Chinese military forces which undertook to maintain order.

BARRICADES DESTROYED

Virtually all barricades to the concession have been destroyed and a consular dispatch says the British Bund, the principal thoroughfare for foreigners along the waterfront there is "unsafe for foreigners." It adds that "the situation is very discouraging."

A German citizen was stabbed and seriously wounded Monday by agitators within the British concession.

Rescue Two Children Near Death by Gas in Lynn

Two Lynn children, Jeanette Poulen, four, and Rita Morrissette, 13, of Buffum street, Lynn, were overcome by fumes from a leaking gas-stove today. They were taken to the Lynn Hospital for treatment, and will recover.

Mr. and Mrs. John Morrissette, parents of the older girl, rescued them.

NEW INGERSOLL WILL FIGHT

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Jan. 5.—A contest for part of the fortune of the late Mrs. Robert H. Ingersoll, a recent New York suicide, wife of the famous watchmaker, was presaged today when Arthur H. Liberty, local baker, sent an attorney to Greenville Mich., to investigate the identity of Earl J. Lewis, named as a beneficiary.

Liberty believes that Earl Lewis is his eleven-year-old son, supposed to be in the West with his mother, a niece of Mrs. Ingersoll, who was awarded custody of the boy when she obtained a divorce from his father in Idaho in 1918.

Liberty, for whom Neona Noland gave up riches to elope with her uncle's chauffeur, feels that his son was given the name of Lewis after his wife obtained the divorce on the ground of failure to support.

Her husband, an invalid, had lost his fortune some years previously, having been petitioned into bankruptcy after the war.

In May of 1915 New York and Long Island society was stirred when Neona Noland, niece of Mrs. Ingersoll, who made her home with the famous watchmaker and wife, eloped with Arthur Libe the Ingersoll chauffeur. The gi sacrifices included trips to Eur a $40,000 string of pearls, a m cal education and a probable le

"EVERYONE" IN THE ENTIRE SMART Set either is giving a dinner on Friday evening before the Assembly Ball or is invited out to dine as someone else's guest. Perhaps of all these pleasant occasions none has a more important person for hostess or a more impressive company of dinner guests than Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer's hospitality at her Fairfield street house. That this dignified matron is by way of being the "Mrs. Astor" of Boston's Upper Tendom is well known. That she is the arbiter and leader supreme and from her established position on the social pinnacles dispenses the social High Justice, the Middle and the Low, is likewise a fact.

SHE HAS AS GUESTS ON FRIDAY EVENING the board of managers which has this year helped direct social destinies via the Assembly—Mrs. Oliver Ames, Jr., Mrs. Edward D. Brandegee, Mrs. James Lawrence, Joseph Grafton Minot, S. Huntington Wolcott and Harcourt Amory Jr., among a large dinner company. Other hostesses for dinners on Friday are Mesdames Richard S. Russell, George Peabody Gardner, Jr., Oliver Wolcott, Guy Murchie, Philip Wrenn, Arthur Denny and John A. Lowell Blake.

IT WILL BE THE PETITE and lovely Mrs. "Ollie" Ames, Jr., with S. Huntington Wolcott for partner, who will lead the cotillion. And it will be Mrs. Ames, also, together with Mesdames Brandegee, Thayer and Lawrence who will make up the receiving line as now arranged. Of course Mrs. Thayer practically has the say-so in this as well as other Assembly details, and some last moment changes may be made about her dinner table Friday evening.

MRS. GEORGE S. WEST is one of the patronesses who will have a supper party at the Assembly. For even so prearranged and foreordained a function as Boston's Assembly Ball may, it appears, be subject to an innovation now and then. Patronesses entertaining supper groups is one such pleasant innovation, inaugurated last season at Mr. Samuel Hooper's suggestion, and continued this Winter. It's Mr. Hooper who chooses the favors for the cotillion, and this year, so they say, these frivolities are specially gorgeous and amusing.

EACH SUMMER, DURING MR. HOOPER'S tour abroad, he visits those small and fascinating shops along the Rue de Rivoli in Paris, with an eye to purchasing the newest and most charming absurdities for the Assembly. His last Summer's harvest is a specially lovely one, and will make glowing patches of color in the ballroom on Friday. It's from the favors and the gorgeous toilettes that the Assembly takes its color mainly, for otherwise there are no decorations put up in the ballroom.

AND GORGEOUS GOWNS and accessories there'll be in plenty. It's the sole occasion of the Boston season that brings together at one time the entire Smart Set. It's the occasion for which madame's most cherished jewels are brought out from the family strong box, to gleam beneath ballroom lights.

ALTHOUGH THE BUDS are never included in the Assembly list and the fair young debbie (no matter how toplofty her social connections) appears not at the sacred function, there's plenty on the January schedule to keep her engaged elsewhere. The dance for Miss Elizabeth Hubbard at the Republican Club tomorrow evening is almost strictly a debutante function, with only a baker's dozen of Seniors bidden.

GORHAM HUBBARD, brother of the debutante, is head usher, and her sister, Mrs. T. Jefferson Newbold, is hostess for the occasion just as she was earlier in the season at the tea which was Miss Hubbard's formal presentation. Mr. Hubbard and Mrs. Newbold are concerned this Winter in that pleasantest of occupations, launching a debutante successfully on the frothy seas of society.

TOMORROW EVENING'S DANCE is preceded as usual by an ushers' dinner, also to be given at the pleasantly appointed clubhouse on the hill. The usher squad includes Horace Binney, Jr., Shubrick Clymer, Roger Coolidge, Richard and Joshua Hubbard, Henry Jackson, John Morrill, John Olmstead, Philip Rhinelander, Chandler Robbins, George Sturgis, Howard Sturgis and Barret Williams, a very representative set of smart young men, who are entirely familiar with what's-what in the way of usher duties.

IN THE COMELY GROUP about the tea tables for Miss Betty Wheeler's tea dance this afternoon are Miss Frances Meade, Miss Eleanor Holton and Mrs. Philip Klein Brown (Rachel Grant) of a bevy who will ask the guests whether it will be cream or lemon. Miss Wheeler is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wheeler of the Hotel Beaconsfield.

ARMS PARLEY FAVORABLE TO U. S. SAYS GIBSON

New York, Jan. 5 (A.P.).—Hugh Gibson, United States minister to Switzerland and chief of the American delegation to the preparatory committee for the disarmament conference in Geneva believes America's part in the sessions is regarded in a friendly light. "I believe it is understood we are doing all in our power to be helpful," he said. "Certainly we make it clear that we have no interests that can be menaced.'"

Mr. Gibson, accompanied by Mrs. Gibson, arrived here on the Berengaria. He will go at once to Washington to present to the President and Secretary of State Kellogg his report of the six months' session just ended.

WORLD WAR SHELL HITS CLASSED AS GUNSHOTS

Washington, Jan. 5 (A.P.).—Unusually low figures for shell casualties during the World War contained in a recent War Department recapitulation aroused discussion in the department which prompted a new statement today, pointing out that wounds caused by missiles other than machine gun, rifle, or pistol bullets were classified as gunshot wounds.

The original announcement based on the records of more than 200,000 wounds treated, said only 4.59 per cent. were by shell while 61.0 per cent. were classified as gunshot. The shell casualties included in these figures were only those specifically recorded at the time as such.

PART OF AZTEC WOMAN'S BODY SAVED 200 YEARS

New York, Jan. 5 (I.N.S.).—The upper half of the body of an Aztec Indian woman killed 200 years ago, shrunk to 9½ inches through a preserving process but still perfect in every detail, was brought here today by Charles P. Elas from Central America.

Elas said the mummy had been in possession of his family for many years. The woman, when killed, was 45 years old.

Being killed during a tribal war, her body was cut in half, according to custom, and the upper half preserved.

CONVICT SLAYS PRISON GUARD

Meanwhile, the elderly guard, his spine almost severed in the gash inflicted by the axe, was breathing his last on the frozen ground.

He died within a few minutes after Dr. Adam T. MacKnight, superintendent of the Bristol County Tuberculosis Hospital, across the street from the prison camp, had bound up the ugly wound.

SLAIN WITH AXE BLOW.

According to the guards and the three prisoners who effected the capture—William Langtop and Arthur Counsel of New Bedford and Arthur Gauthier of Pawtucket—Lewis had shown signs of mental disturbance last night.

Today he was working with Langtop and Counsel at a cement mixer which had broken down and which Walker, the guard, was attempting to repair.

As Walker was bending over the mixer, Lewis, according to Langtop, suddenly seized an axe, brought it down in a terrific swing against the back of Wauker's neck, felled him in a bloody pool and then swung the axe at Langtop.

The New Bedford prisoner dodged, dove at Lewis, upset him and they grappled on the ground, as Counsel and Gauthier came to his assistance.

Lewis, a powerful man, squirmed up again, however, and sprinted across the fields toward the woods fringing the farm. Blocked in this direction, he wheeled and raced for the main highway, 300 yards away. He had covered only about fifty yards, however, before he was brought down with a crash.

Prison Guard James Leahy, running up, snapped handcuffs on Lewis and later he was turned over to Police Chief Flanagan of Attleboro for arraignment in court.

Jailed on a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, Lewis was transferred from the New Bedford House of Correction to the prison camp only last Monday.

Last night, according to Langtop and others, Lewis suddenly declared to his mates that Guard Walker had attempted to poison him because he wanted to go home to his wife and children in Grove street, Taunton.

LEGISLATURE SEEKS BRIEF TERM RECORD

of Andover. Mr. Henry today succeeded the late Captain James P. Clare of Acton as doorkeeper of the House.

Senator Alvin E. Bliss of Malden again was chosen G. O. P. floor leader of the upper branch and the same honor in the House was reconferred on Representative Victor F. Jewett of Lowell.

Gavels fell in both branches in the hands of the oldest member in point of service, Senator Walt E. McLane, starting his fifteenth consecutive year, and Representative Harrison H. Atwood, former congressman, whose legislative care started forty years ago in the same chamber.

Attended by the members of his council, Governor Fuller administered the oath to the members of each branch collectively 'i their respective chambers, retiring thereafter immediately to the executive suite.

At noon tomorrow the House and Senate will meet in joint convention in the House where Governor Fuller will deliver his second inaugural address All the customary pomp of this ceremony will be in evidence.

3 WOMEN SEATED

In the Governor's train in the march from the executive chamber to the House, the brilliant uniforms of foreign consuls, attaches, naval and army officers, will form striking contrasts to the sober dress of the judiciary and distinguished citizens.

Three women, a record number, took their seats, two of them for the first time. They are M. Sylvia Donaldson of Brockton, Florence S. Slocomb of Worcester, and Martha N. Brooks of Gloucester.

Without contest, Speaker John C. Hull of Leominster and President Wellington Wells of Boston were reelected to these offices. After thanking the members, both recommended changes in rules, the discontinuance of the committee on State admintaken from the Committee on civil service. It was also recommended that all matters dealing with workmen's compensation be taken from the Cmomittee on Judiciary and placed in the hands of the Committee on Labor and Industries.

AGAINST OBSELETE LAWS.

Speaker Hull, after urging the members to try for the shortest session in history, one of three months, classed as "desirable" legislation any proposals for the reduction of taxes and the repeal of obsolete laws.

"If any of you know of any law that should be repealed, I urge you to file a petition to accomplish that result," he said. "Less legislation sounds and is attractive. And if any of you know of any way to reduce taxes, save by reducing expenditures, I trust you will immediately bring it to the attention of the General Court."

He advised continuance of the precedent of the last two legislatures in refusing "to memorialize or advise Congress in respect to its duties."

The short session, he frankly admitted, would go a long way toward a change in the constitution in favor of only one session every two years. Attempts to bring about biennial sessions have been bitterly fought on the ground that government would be removed farther from the people.

Dr. Fish to Talk Fish at Fish Conference in Washington

Washington, Jan. 5 (Universal).—Dorctor Charles J. Fish, government fish expert (no foolin') will tell all about fish at the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries' fish conference today.

Conservation of the rapidly diminishing supply of some of the nation's most important food fishes is being discussed at the three-day meeting which opened today. Conservation experts from all sections of the country are in attendance.

MARGARET WILSON SEES GIRL SLAYER SENTENCED

New York, Jan. 5 (I.N.S.).—Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the war-time President, and Harry K. Thaw were among spectators in Bronx County court today when Catherine Denino, sixteen, was arraigned for sentence for killing Luigi Fino, the man she accuses of betraying her.

vate chemical research engineers, the treasury is close on the trail of a satisfactory substitute for wood alcohol as a denaturant and anticipates within a few months it will be possible to eliminate all poison

Treasury chemists have recommended that revised formula No. 5, under which a bulk of the industrial alcohol is denatured, should again be amended to reduce the wood alcohol content from four to two percent. By this change coupled with elimination of poisonous pyridine for non-poisonous aldehol, experts said a virtually harmless formula would be provided.

26 Poison Rum Deaths in Hartford During the Year

Hartford, Ct., Jan. 5 (A.P.) — A steady increase in deaths from alcoholism in this city since 1922 resulted in an aggregate of 26 during 1926. Only in two years since records were started in 1861, has this number been exceeded. In 1906 there were 29 such deaths and 1903 there were 32 More than half the 1926 deaths from alcoholism were reported in the last four months.

STUDENT WITH CHORUS GIRLS IS HELD IN $500

John Farrell Ward, 22, of Audubon road, who said he was a senior at Boston University Law School, was arraigned in Newton Court today for drunken driving, operating without a license and without registration. He pleaded not guilty and the case was continued until January 13. He was held in $500. It was alleged that Ward, with two chorus girls, who were released, was arrested at Newton Corner.

caravan consisting of two five-ton trucks and two touring cars.

The fleet appeared as expected and was held up by the police. The prohibition agents showed their credentials and declared they were escorting the liquor from a government warehouse in Fall River, Mass., to New York. Lacking permit, the prohibition men were arrested and the entire caravan guided to the barracks.

In the load of liquor were, according to State police, rye and Scotch whiskey, Belgian alcohol and champagne.

According to the State police the liquor really was landed from a boat at Fall River and an effort was made to get it overland to New York. The prohibition agents are believed to have had aides who sent the tip to Groton by telephone.

WHITING-CHAPIN WEDDING UNITES TWO OLD FAMILIES

Holyoke, Jan. 5 (A.P.).—A wedding that united families long prominent in the Connecticut Valley was that of Miss Ruth Whiting, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Whiting, to Neil Chapin, son of Alfred H. Chapin of Springfield, which took place in the Whiting home here today in the presence of a noteworthy assemblage.

Miss Whiting is the granddaughter of William Whiting, for many years Congressman from the first district. Her father, William F. Whiting, is head of the Whiting Paper Company. The Whitings are close friends of the Coolidges and have frequently valted the White House. Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., widely known in tennis circles, served his brother as best man.

ONE DEAD, ONE DYING AFTER TRAIN HITS AUTO

Dighton, Jan. 5.—Lewis Simmons, 19, of Elm street, this town, was instantly killed, and his father, Charles Simmons, 50, was probably fatally injured today when their automobile was struck by a Boston to Fall River, New York, New Haven & Hartford train. The accident occurred on the Dighton street grade crossing.

3 LONG PRISON TERMS TO STOP R. I. ROBBER REIGN

Providence, Jan. 5 (A.P.).—With a warning that robberies in Rhode Island must stop, Judge Hahn, in Superior Court, today sentenced Harold W. Reynolds of Warwick to 15 years in State's prison, and Jacob Minassian and John Butts of Providence to ten years each for assault with intent to rob.

DR. CHARLOTTE DE GALLIERE DAVENPORT charming lady, who lectures on health, looks about forty and is actually 102 years old, startles good W. C. T. U.'s with this: "To live long, eat when hungry, exercise, drink moderately, don't smoke too much."

THE LADY has Russian and French blood, both good for long life. And, most important, she weighs 120 pounds. Your body is an irrigation farm. Your heart the pump. Your blood the water. A light body calls for light pumping, making the heart's work easy. Cut down your weight, and add to your life. Every added pound means more work for the heart.

J. N. MOORE, University of Illinois sophomore, wrote, before killing himself: "It raises the devil with me to think of having to slave around and work like the Devil and just grow old. I can't see the idea of wading through school, then dash bravely out and get a big old job at a hundred a month."

In six words of his letter the young man explains what is really the matter with him: "I am just spoiled I suppose." If all the spoiled children in this foolish country committed suicide, there would not be enough graveyards.

YOUNG MEXICANS gathered in Rome, representing the Gioventu Cattolica, swore in presence of Pope Pius to resist, until death, Mexico's attack on the Roman Catholic faith. Each received from the Pope a "Medal of Merit."

That solemn promise made by Mexican youths to the Pope is a serious menace to the anti-Catholic government of Calles.

NO MEXICAN outbreak yet, although it has been promised for three days. It would be a picturesque war, De la Huerta leading an army of Yaqui Indians, all devout Catholics, against the Mexican government, and the Mexican people themselves divided between their hatred of laws that oppress their church and their hatred of a foreign foe. In case the United States should join with De la Huerta, such a war would be an interesting struggle between religious and patriotic sentiments.

LEADERS of any invading army would rely on Mexican Catholic hostility to their government.

That the Vatican, representing the power and the influence of Rome, would welcome an internal revolution overthrowing Calles and his laws against the Church is probable.

BUT TO encourage invasion and possible conquest of Mexico, one of the few truly Catholic countries, by a nation like the United States, classed as Protestant, would be a different matter.

Our constitution recognizes no particular religion, and the Catholic Church is the most numerous, well organized and most powerful unit of the Christian Church in the United States, undoubtedly.

But Protestants, and those with no religion that may be called "Ultra Protestants," far outnumber Catholics, so that this is, in number, a Protestant country.

CONQUEST OF Mexico by the United States would not restore Mexico's public schools to control of the Church teachers.

It is a complicated situation. Perhaps there won't be any war. Only enough threatening and demonstrating on this side of the Rio Grande to obtain reasonable oil and Church concessions.

STRIKE VOTE ON B. & M. GOES TO CONFERENCE

A conference between President Hannauer of the Boston & Maine Railroad and a committe representing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen over the strike vote taken by the latter, will to held tomorrow.

The decision of the president on the "Troy run" is likely to determine whether there is to be a strike

HOME RULE IS DEMANDED FOR BOSTON

Home Rule for Boston and other cities of the State is one of the outstanding 14 demands made upon the Legislature today in a list filed by the Progressive Action Committee of Massachusetts.

Among other demands of the committee are: An investigation of the State Department of Labor and Industries; the refusal to renew the Elevated Control Act; the retention of the direct primary and to oppose all attempts to return to the convention system of nominations; the enactment into a law of the bill of the State Federation of Labor for a state monopoly of employment agencies.

Other demands affecting the labor conditions are: Passage of the State Federation of Labor's bill which would prevent injunctions in labor disputes; the creation of a fund for workmen's compensation; the defeat of all bills aiming to break down the standard of wages and labor conditions; the passage of a bill requiring labor spies and their employers to register at the State House.

SMITH URGES MODIFIED 'DRY' LAW

Albany, Jan. 5 (A.P.).—Governor Smith, in his annual message to the legislature today, urged that Congress be memorialized to take immediate action to the end that "harmless beverages which our people have enjoyed for more than a century may be restored to them."

While advocating modification of the Volstead Act, the Governor said that until such modification is effective, the Federal liquor laws are as much laws of this state as any state statute, and must be enforced.

"I again warn sheriffs and peace officers generally," he said, "that it is their sworn duty to enforce these laws. Failure to perform this duty I will consider as serious an offense as a failure to enforce the state statutes, and when laid before me, supported by proper and competent testimony, I will exercise without fear or favor the power of removal wherever it is vested in me."

Aside from the liquor question the Governor, who had announced in his inaugural address that he was "receptive" concerning the presidential nomination of the Democratic party, predicted tax reduction, and renewed former recommendations for legislation which a Republican legislature had thitherto denied

FINDS BROTHER LOST FOR 47 YEARS

Lost to each other for forty-seven years and then reunited to find each had ten children and several grandchildren, is the unique experience of Mrs. Annie Hawes of No. 151 Warren avenue, Milton, and Fred Warriner of Sarver, Pa., sister and brother. He is sixty-six and she—well, she's near Fred's age.

Almost a half-century ago they left the old family home in Stratford, Ontario, to make their way in the world. The then Miss Warriner came to Boston for employment. She was married and raised a family, often wondering what had become of the brother she never heard from. Fred settled on the farm in Pennsylvania.

On New Year's Day a gray haired stranger rang the bell of the Hawes home in Milton. Mrs. Hawes opened the door.

"Hello, sis—don't you know me?" the stranger asked. "I'm your brother, Fred."

"Well, of all things!" exclaimed the beaming Mrs. Hawes, and a real old family reunion was on. It's still going strong, both trying to get a firm hold on all the names of the children and grandchildren yet to meet.

QUEEN TO PLAY MOTHER TO BABY OF DUCHESS

London, Jan. 5 (A.P.).—Queen Mary whose last child was born twenty-two years ago, is about the happiest woman in England because it has been decided that she will look after her baby granddaughter, Princess Elizabeth, during the six months' tour of the Duke and Duchess of York to Australia.

The Queen has always been a great lover of children and despite her duties as first lady of the land, she mothered her own babies with the same devotion that can be found in any of the homes of her realm.

The Queen, whose last child Prince John, died in 1919, when he was just a boy, has had the royal nursery at Buckingham Palace refitted for Princess Elizabeth.

'FORM FITTING' GARMENTS LATEST IN MEN'S STYLES

Girls, here's a bit of news for you!

In the near future when your best beau calls on you, don't be at all surprised if you see him gayly attired in a new "form-fitting" garment. For fashion has decreed that men to be correctly dressed for the street must necessarily wear clothes modelled in the above design.

More about men's clothes will be discussed tomorrow when the Merchant Tailors' Exchange of Boston meet for their 41st annual meeting at the Engineers' Club.

NOT EVEN JAIL BARS CAN PART ANDY AND TIM

The Coakley brothers of Sprague street, Charlestown, are so deeply attached to each other that they cannot bear to be parted for a moment, even by prison bars.

The Newton police had a warrant for Andrew, the elder, for violation of his probation. While they were searching for him he and brother Timothy marched into Newton police headquarters.

"We want to give ourselves up," they announced, duet.

"We'll take Andrew, but we don't want you, Timothy," was the official retort.

But Timothy insisted, declaring that he, too, had broken his probation. His appeals fell on deaf ears, so Timothy departed with determination in his eye.

Not so much later a bluecoat marched into the station, half-carrying the limp form of Timothy. He was suspected of being terribly, terribly drunk.

Today the pair were arraigned in court. Andrew drew fifteen days in jail, and because he had really broken his probation Timothy got the same. Tim was given a thirty-day suspended sentence for drunkenness.

But virtue had its own reward and the brothers cast each other a long look of affection as they proceeded to jail—together.

KIP'S WIFE TO START NEW SUIT

New Rochelle, N. Y., Jan. 5 (I.N.S.)—Still hopeful of the renewal of her romance with Leonard Kip Rhinelander, scion of one of New York's oldest families, Alice Jones Rhinelander declared today she is planning to begin a legal battle to clear her name of the allegation she has negro blood in her veins.

The discarded bride of young Rhinelander also expressed satisfaction over the decision of the appellate division denying her husband a new trial from his annulment suit which resulted in a verdict in her favor.

Alice reiterated her belief that Kip's original court action asking for a sundering of the matrimonial bonds on the alleged grounds she deceived him as to her negro blood was brought through "outside influence."

"I never said I was through with Mr. Rhinelander," she exclaimed.

QUEEN'S DON'T LIST RESTRAINS ILEANA

ILEANA IS KEPT IN CHECK

Princess' Dresses Are Selected by Marie; Her Pastimes Closely Watched

Sarah Brown, Chicago girl reporter, served as personal maid to Queen Marie of Rumania during the royal tour of the United States. She had unusual opportunity to study the Queen in repose, of seeing the real Marie in private.

What the Queen actually thought of America and the Americans; what her moods and whims are, Miss Brown in a series of articles tells Boston Evening American readers. The third of the series follows:

By SARAH BROWN

(Copyright, 1927, by The Boston Evening American. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

All the romance and glitter and glory that surround a queen and her children are Marie's—and well she knows how to claim it all.

No gilded princess in a novel could lead a more picturesque life than does Ileana, and no queen mother could keep up in all the details of her daily life the trappings and sidelights of God-given royalty better than does Ileana's busy mama.

While I was helping pick up and arrange the pretty wide-eyed Princess' many dresses, and while I dusted her dressing table and answered her bell, I found out that she doesn't think it's as much fun to live in closely guarded splendor with a royal husband of somebody else's choosing in the offing, as some dreamy little girls might guess it to be.

There are always such troublesome words—"duty," and "must and "can't," and "rank"—that keep cropping up to spoil dances and parties and runaway rides that almost any other 18-year-old girl in the world can indulge in

BUT NICKY CAN

As for bonny Prince Nikolai, blonde and English as his distant cousin, Edward, Prince of Wales—not all the "have to's" and 'don'ts" in the world can keep him from slipping once in a while from high but wearisome position and allow him to cuss out his valet and throw his neckties on the floor the way any rich but untitled young man might.

However, I discovered that the little Princess (who is really a big and husky one) is allowed to have as much of her own way about things as possible, in so far as they do not concern or interfere with her rank, and Prince Nicky can smoke all the cigarets he wants to and leave his bath water in the tub when he gets out if he feels like it, so long as they obey their Queen and mother in the more important details of their own lives.

For instance, Ileana is allowed considerable freedom when it comes to clothes—not in their selection, of course, for they must all conform to the Queen's notion of what is proper for an almost 18-year-old Princess—but in their possession. Not even her personal maid knew how many dresses the vivacious Princess owns, but it would be safe to hazard that the wardrobes of two or three American debutantes would be compressed in her collection.

FROCKS SIMPLE

In spite of this, she never gives the impression of being overdressed, because her frocks are all made along the same lines and are cut with girlish simplicity.

"Look," said her maid proudly displaying a severe little sports frock that I imagine many an American co-ed would turn up her nose at until she glimpsed the Patou label inside. "Look: this is one of the Princess' prettiest dresses. It is very new, and she loves it deeply. But she' has three others almost alike."

Another thing that many a less noble mother and daughter may have argued about: Ileana is de-

SENATE PROBES 'DISTRUSTED,' SAYS GOULD

Washington, Jan. 5 (A.P.)—A warning that the country is becoming "suspicious" of Senate investigations was contained in a brief filed with the Senate elections committee today by counsel for Senator Gould, Republican, Maine, under investigation on charges of bribing a Canadian official to obtain a railroad franchise

"The eyes of the people from every state in this great union have been focussed upon the United States Senate," said the brief.

"They have been watching investigation after investigation and have been taking into account the large amount of time expended in these investigations and the vast sum of the people's money expended in connection therewith, and they have been putting into the other side of the scales the net results of all these investigations, and they have necessarily been convinced that the net results of that which it proposed to accomplish have been practically nil

"Their eyes are now especially focussed upon the Senate and they are watching and waiting to learn whether or not the Senate shall declare itself an exclusive club with full authority to exclude or expel for any reason or motion it shall entertain."

Fail to Confirm Bannon

The retiring executive council, at its first meeting today, refused to confirm the re-appointment of William J. Bannon as clerk of the Waltham Court. Unless Governor Fuller re-submits Bannon's name to the new council, which meets tomorrow, the matter is a closed incident.

It is shown in an accounting of the estate of her father, James Buchanan Duke, tobacco magnate She began riding in a $250 baby carriage and now has a $35,000 Pullman car, three automobiles and a stable of thoroughbreds.

It cost $6,000 to furnish her boudoir in her New York town house She also owns a place in fashionable Newport and a 2,000-acre country estate near Somerville.

NAB NICARAGUA SHIP OFF CAPE

New Bedford, Jan. 5 (I N S).—Seizure off Cuttyhunk of the steamship Clara Mathieu of Nicaraguan registry, by coastguard patrol boat No. 149, out of Woods Hole, caused much speculation here today

The Clara Mathieu cleared Halifax, N. S., with 3,200 cases of liquor aboard but none was found by the coast guardsmen.

The steamship had British mail for Miquelon.

Washington, Jan. 5 (A P).—Announcement of the landing of a new force of American Marines in Nicaragua was followed today by a statement by Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committee that the Monroe Doctrine has "no relation" either to the situation in Nicaragua or the trouble in Mexico.

"In Nicaragua the revolution is being carried on by those who claim Sacasa is the constitutional President, and is purely an internal affair," he said.

"In Mexico it is a question of title to oil. The British oil interests or companies seem willing to comply with the Mexican laws. Under no conceivable theory can the Monroe Doctrine have any application."

CHIEF ON TRIAL TELLS OF JAIL THREAT

Chief Walter A Hill of Wilmington was threatened with two years' imprisonment and a $10 000 fine by Assistant Prohibition Administrator Philip Hamlin before his indictment in the Wilmington rum conspiracy case according to testimony given by the chief in his own defence in Federal District Court today.

Chief Hill and ten others are on trial before Judge Lowell and a jury on a liquor conspiracy indictment arising out of the seizure of a huge still by Federal agents on the Stevens farm, Wilmington, last March

In direct testimony Chief Hill testified he had received reports concerning the farm in March and had several times notified the Wilmington selectmen of his suspicions. He detailed Officer Eaton to investigate but his report did not warrant proceeding.

TELLS OF THREAT.

Chief Hill denied acquaintance with any of his co-defendants with the exception of Pasquale Sciarappa.

Q. (By Boyle)—When did you first know of this case? A. [illegible] in the Fall of last year, when I was called by telephone into the office of the U S attorney

Q.—What was said or done at that meeting? A. Taylor [illegible] shirt sleeves, with his hands [illegible] his back, was brought into the room to confront me.

Q.—What was said in your presence? A.—Major Hamlin told me I was in worse than Taylor and told me he could send me away for two years and get me a $10 000 fine.

DENIES CHARGES.

Chief Hill flatly denied the statements of government witnesses that he had been on a drunken party at the farm on Palm Sunday of last year, and offered the [illegible] that on the date in question he was on duty in Wilmington square.

HUGGER IS CLEVER IN DISGUISE

Quincy Victims Give Varied Descriptions as Men Hunt for Mysterious Thug

The "hugger" whom the Quincy police are seeking for a score of affronts to women and girls is a man who cleverly conceals his identity, according to the varied descriptions given by some of his victims today.

At times he affects the collegiate type with the campus swank to his clothes. It is this disguise that he has used most frequently in accosting his married victims. Again he affects the sober black or blue of business, with a paternal mien to put the young girls off their guard. At other times he has appeared like the true thug he is described to be, without affectation of any kind.

DISTRICT AROUSED.

The "hugger" has been active in Atlantic, Norfolk Downs and Wollaston for nearly two months. The publicity given him has aroused the entire district to a vigilant search by the men, led by the Rev. R. A. McDonald, pastor of the Memorial Congregational Church, whose 12-year-old daughter was recently carried off by the "hugger" and narrowly escaped through the screams of a companion.

The women of the district fear to venture out of doors after dusk. The children also are being kept at home after school hours, for fear of molestation by the "hugger."

SIX FEET TALL.

Several married women have informed the police of the "hugger's" attacks upon them, while a large number of grammar and high school girls have added their experiences to the evidence piling up against him

All are agreed only upon the "hugger's" apparent age as between 30 and 35, and upon his height as being about six feet. Further descriptions of him vary, some thinking he shows a great familiarity with the district, others that he appears to be a stranger

Mrs. M. G. Lamb of East Squantum street, Quincy, scored the police for the continued activity of the "hugger."

NATICK MAN HELD ON INTENT TO KILL CHARGE

Philip Boudreault of Washington street, Natick, was arraigned in Natick Court today on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill Joseph P. Wignot former chairman of the Board of Selectmen, with carrying a firearm without authority, and on two charges of drunkenness. Boudreault pleaded not guilty to all charges and was released in $3 000 bail pending a hearing January 12. It was alleged by Wignot that after a quarrel last night Boudreault left him later returning with a gun. Wignot said the man threatened him, and waved the gun in his face

PARTY TO STIMULATE 'GOODWILL'

Industrial Mission Sails Mar. 19 on Trip Aimed to Create New Markets

By FRED TOYE

A New England goodwill delegation, representative of 2,000 manufacturers, is planning to sail for Central America and Cuba in March, prepared to show the specialized goods in whose manufacture New England's skilled labor excels.

Under the banner of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, the group, which will include executives of many diversified enterprises, will board the steamship Calamares of the United Fruit Line in New York Saturday, March 19 Their first stop will be Havana.

Five days later the party will stop at Port Antonio, Jamaica. Kingston, Jamaica, will be the next stop, and on the 31st the party will reach Cristobal, Canal Zone. Port Limon Costa Rica, will be reached April 2 A second visit will be made at Havana on April 6, and the vessel will dock in New York April 10

"The main objective of the trip is to create and stimulate closer relations between our manufacturers and the Central American countries and the West Indies,' said Orra L. Stone general manager of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts

The Amazing Love Story of a Misunderstood Hub Working Girl

"Don't you ever speak to me again!" cried Gay, striking the astonished Stanley.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Gay Moore and her cousin, Christine Noe, who have been raised together by Gay's parents, affectionately called Jaimie and Mary, are employed in the State Street house of Johnstone Baird, Christine as telephone operator and Gay as a typist. Christine has determined on making a rich marriage and sees opportunity knocking on her door in the person of Roger Pennington, chum of Stanley Baird. She wants Gay to leave home and take an apartment in the West End. Gay refuses. Gay is strongly attracted to Stanley Baird. Peggy Baird and her friend, Mimi Brooks, come to the office and on making an insulting request of Christine, are "put in their place" by Christine to the intense amusement of Stanley, who leaves the office with them. As Gay watches their departure, little chills creep around her heart.

On Saturday with its half holiday Gay and Christine find Stanley Baird and Roger Pennington waiting in Stan's roadster. They motor to a roadhouse. Christine makes rapid headway in her siege on Penny's affections, while Gay preserves a quiet calm that appeals to Stanley. On the way home Christine tells Gay that she has Stan "going" and advises her to "thaw" if she wants to win love.

Meanwhile Christine progresses favorably in her friendship with Penny, also encouraging Ivor Barclay, a lawyer and a client of Baird's. Gay invites Stan to a clambake at her home and he accepts. They are interrupted by the entrance of the "Lilac Lady."

CHAPTER 9

"CHRISTY, why don't they come? It's nearly 10. Do you think they've forgotten us?"

4 WOMEN AND 9 MEN HELD FOR 100 HOLDUPS

New York, Jan. 5 (A.P.)—Four women, wearing diamonds and expensive jewelry, and nine men, mostly of the "sheik" type, were rounded up by the police early today on suspicion that they were implicated in nearly 100 recent robberies.

Four of the men, the police said, have confessed fifteen robberies.

The arrests materialized through the theft of a purse from Miss Esther Heller, a secretary, in the Bronx, yesterday. Two men, who evidently believed she was carrying a large amount of money, grabbed her pocketbook in a hallway. It contained only $4.

Although Miss Heller was struck by the men she followed them and one, Aristide Grabatelli, was caught in a barber shop. He proved to be the "key" man, the police said, in unearthing a nest of criminals. Detectives broke in his apartment and found three men and the four women. Other men were rounded up later on tips.

The police believe the women were involved in a Bronx jewelry store holdup, where they got the diamond rings, wrist watches and other jewelry they wore.

BEACON OIL COMPANY ADDS ANOTHER TANKER

The 10,000-ton tanker Heven, recently acquired from the United States Shipping Board by the Beacon Oil Company of Everett, has been newly named the Beaconhill and will make the third ocean-going tanker in use by the company.

The Beaconhill, like her sister ships, the [illegible] and Beaconlight, will be used for the transportation of crude oil from the Gulf to the refinery at Everett.

The Beacon Oil Company has now purchased water terminals in New London, Ct., and on the East River in New York City, establishing a complete chain for refining and marketing its products.

The newly named vessel is 435 feet overall, with a dead weight displacement of 10,078 tons, and net carrying capacity of 75,000 barrels. She is equipped with triple expansion engines, which give her a speed of approximately 12 knots per hour.

GOVERNOR MOODY AND BRIDE FOR ECONOMY

Abilene, Tex., Jan. 5 (A.P.)—As an object lesson for young married couples, Governor and Mrs. Dan Moody are going to do their "dead level best" to live in the Governor's mansion on the salary of $4,000 a year, Mrs. Moody said here today.

Keeping within this budget will be difficult, the bride of the 33-year-old Governor-elect who married during his campaign, admitted, in view of the many calls on the Governor's purse, but she believes it can be done.

FAVORS STATE LAW TO ENFORCE PROHIBITION

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 5 (I.N.S.)—Governor Albert C. Ritchie told the legislators of Maryland today that what Maryland and the rest of the country need is fewer laws.

On the subject of prohibition he said:

"A State measure to enforce national prohibition will undoubtedly be introduced. Personally, I am opposed to the Volstead act as an enforcement measure in this State."

267 Rioters Nabbed

Padang, Sumatra, Jan. 5 (A.P.)—The Dutch authorities today announced that insurrectionist activity around Padang and Sibosoek had been suppressed and that 267 rioters had been made prisoners. Military forces have begun action against the insurrectionists in Silongkang, on the west coast of Sumatra.

SYMPHONY IS ALL FRENCH

By MOSES SMITH.

An all-French program attracted a crowded house to Symphony Hall for the second of the series of Tuesday afternoon Symphony Concerts. For the principal number Serge Koussevitzky chose Cesar Franck's great symphony, probably the outstanding masterpiece in French musical literature.

It was [illegible] time this year the writer was listening to Franck's work, for it had been performed at each of the other series. Yesterday's performance did not quite come up to the standard set on the Monday night concert a month ago. On further hearing Mr. Koussevitzky's rendition of the piece seems the more [illegible]. He makes it very [illegible] intense, very dramatic and [illegible].

Such procedure does violence to the traditional way to look upon Franck [illegible]. But for one listening with open ears Mr. Koussevitzky's interpretation satisfies according to the only logical test—results.

SOREL OPENS NEXT MONDAY

The much postponed Boston engagement of Cecile Sorel, who has been hailed in New York as "the world's greatest actress," will open at the Boston Opera House next Monday evening, and run for one week only, according to an announcement given out at the Shubert Boston offices.

The French star and her own company from the Comedie Francaise, the national theatre of France, was scheduled to open here at the Boston Opera House last week, but the demand for her plays in New York kept her there. This week she is playing in Montreal and will come direct from the Canadian [illegible] to Boston.

The [illegible] is announced by the Shuberts, under whose management the famous actress was brought to America, [illegible] Quebec and Ottawa [illegible] tour, which [illegible] was to [illegible] following Montreal, but the French government has refused to [illegible] any further extensions of her leave of absence from the French [illegible] and so it has been necessary to [illegible] all other Canadian [illegible] outside of Montreal in order to fill the engagement at the Opera House here before her return to France.

NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC AND G. O. P. FACE DEBTS

Washington, Jan. 5 (I.N.S.)—The Republican and Democratic National Committees [illegible] huge deficits in 1926. It was [illegible] in statements filed with the clerks of the House today.

The Republican committee spent $67,312.66 in 1926 [illegible] from contributions but $4[illegible] and a loan of $12,[illegible] according to the statement of William V. Hodges, national treasurer. The net deficit for the year was shown to be $236,[illegible].

While the Democratic committee failed to either collect or spend as much as the Republicans it ended the year with $16[illegible] in unpaid bills and but $3,823.[illegible] to meet them.

ST. JAMES PLAYERS AT LUNCHEON TODAY

The return of the popular stock favorites, Walter Gilbert and Florence Shirley to the Keith-Albee St. James, is being [illegible] today at a luncheon tendered to the entire new resident company by the Huntington Avenue Association at the Hotel [illegible]. Former Governor Channing Cox and Former Mayor James M. Curley are the guests and speakers.

STRICKEN ASTER TAKING ACCIDENTAL OVERDOSE

Suffering from an accidental dose of a drug she had been taking for a nervous breakdown, Mrs. Josephine Edelson, thirty-four, a traveling woman, living in Washington street, South End, is at the Massachusetts General Hospital in a serious condition. She was found in her bedroom early today by her mother, who called the hospital and ambulance.

1,000 WORKED IN 'FOREST'

Two tons of gun powder, 3,000,000 square feet of lumber, 500 rifles, [illegible],000 costumes, more than 1,000 extra people, including Indians from more than a dozen tribes, 700 horses, a complete field kitchen and a corps of waiters, a special train and $10,[illegible] worth of provisions for people and feed for animals.

These were a few of the items required during the filming of "The Flaming Forest," the Cosmopolitan production now being shown at Loew's State.

This picture, directed by Reginald Barker, with a cast of more than twenty notable screen players, is one of the most lavish productions of the year and was adapted to the screen by Waldemar Young from the famous James Oliver Curwood novel of the same name, depicting the wilderness of the Northwest Territory at the time of the organization of the Northwest mounted police.

Location trips were made to Canada, Montana and to three places in the high Sierras of California.

LEAPS 175 FEET TO DIE; CHANGES MIND; SAVED!

Philadelphia, Jan. 5 (A.P.)—"Half way down" in the 175-foot drop from the centre of the Delaware River bridge to the water is no place to change your mind, in the opinion of Walter H. Church, who attempted suicide from the span.

"I wanted to end it all," he said from a cot in a hospital today. "I thought my whole life was useless.

"Then when I made the final decision and leaped from the bridge I knew I had made a mistake.

"When I was in the air half way down, traveling like a bullet, I changed my mind, and here I'm the second man to make the leap and live to tell about it," smiled grimly. "But I was in a bad place to change my mind. I was going down, down, down. All I could see was the water below me.

"Somehow I changed my position in the air as if it were a dive in an old swimming hole. Just like doing a back-flip. But the speed! I remember in a fraction of a second I saw buildings on the Philadelphia side zip past me faster than anything I ever saw.

"I was a good swimmer and had no fear of the water after I was in it. But the terrible crash! I remember hitting the water. I went under I don't know how far. It was just a repetition of the fall.

"Down, down, down, then everything went black. I don't remember being picked up."

ZIEGFELD TO LAUNCH ALL HIS SHOWS IN HUB

So elated is Florenz Ziegfeld over the reception by Boston of his new musical comedy operetta, "Rio Rita," now at the Colonial, that he plans to launch all his future productions in the Hub. He has built his own theatre in New York and it is now ready to open its doors for the first time. "Rio Rita," now in its last week at the Colonial, will be the opening attraction.

CHICAGO THEATRE LOSING AT $1,000 A DAY RATE

Chicago, Jan. 5—A thousand dollars a day was the deficit under which Mrs. Samuel Insull's repertoire theatre company has been operating in the Studebaker Theatre for several months, according to gossip in theatrical circles today that followed an announcement that the Insull project will terminate its 1926-27 engagement on the evening of January 1[illegible].

Sousa Finds Youth Is a Girl With 'Bass Cough'

New York, Jan. 5 (A.P.)—That interesting, enigmatical creature, the present day girl, as he describes her, has about reached the end of the rope with John Philip Sousa.

At an opera in Philadelphia the composer was disturbed by a deep toned cough. He sent an usher for some drops and offered them to the suffering "young man," but discovered the cougher was a boyish-robed young beauty.

JANUARY THAW COMES EARLY

Old-fashioned or new-fangled, call it what you will, the fifth day of the 1927 Winter season saw the mercury hereabouts 11 degrees above its normal mark, indicating a January thaw.

Slightly colder weather tonight and tomorrow is predicted by the local forecaster to temporarily halt the melting process.

HUB POLICE TO DANCE TONIGHT

Tonight's the night for the criminal fraternity to get in its deadliest work, for Boston's finest will be all at the Policemen's Ball, that is all that are relieved from duty.

Governor Fuller, Mayor Nichols, District Attorney Foley, Police Commissioner Wilson, Superintendent Crowley and a host of other notables will be on hand when the grand march opens at Mechanics Hall.

Rowland Told Him Games Were Fixed, Says Risberg

NAMES EHMKE.

The witness plainly nervous and keeping himself in hand with obvious effort, declared that no mention had been made of the fund until two weeks after the alleged "sloughing" had been done.

Then, he said, the money was collected by a levy of $45 on each of the Sox making a total of about [illegible] and taken to Philadelphia and given to Bill James, then Detroit pitcher, at the Aldine Hotel, Philadelphia. He said James was called from his room into the corridor and when he was handed the money, said:

"Howard wanted his share."

He amplified his statement by saying that Howard Ehmke, now star Philadelphia pitcher, was the man referred to.

RISBERG IS LATE.

Risberg showed up after failing to appear at 10 o'clock, when the hearing was to have started. It was postponed until this afternoon when Risberg, in a mysterious telephone call to the commissioner, said he could not appear at the appointed time.

Ty Cobb was the first to come in as Risberg arrived and took a seat at the left of the commissioner's desk. Ray Schalk, Eddie Collins, Howard Ehmke, Oscar Stanage, George Dauss, Onie Bush, Clarence Rowland and Bennie Dyer were called by Landis and edged into the commissioner's office, crowded to the rim of his desk.

LANDIS CALLS RISBERG.

"Mr. Risberg," said Landis, "you made a statement here New Year's afternoon. Will you repeat that statement?"

Then Risberg began.

"In 1917 we were playing Detroit September 2 and I was informed by Mr. Clarence Rowland that everything was all fixed, and we won four ball games from Detroit.

"About two weeks later, in the Ansonia Hotel, Chick Gandil and I collected $45 apiece from the boys for the Detroit team.

"Rowland gave us permission to go to Philadelphia and there we gave the money we had collected to Bill James. James said he would give Howard (meaning Ehmke) his share."

"What was the first thing you heard about this?" asked Landis.

EVERYTHING ALL FIXED.

"We were down in the dugout the morning of the first game," Risberg said, "and Rowland said to be, 'Everything is all fixed.'"

"Nothing was said at that time about money was there?" asked Landis.

"No, there wasn't," said Risberg.

"Can you tell me how the talk about money started?" asked Landis.

"No, I can't," Risberg replied.

"Who collected money besides you?" asked the commissioner.

"Chick Gandil," Risberg said.

"During this first game, did anybody say anything to you about 'sloughing' games?" asked Landis.

"No. The only thing I remember was that in the afternoon game, Eddie Collins said when Dennis Dyer, Detroit shortstop, booted a ball, 'that's terrible.'"

"What did you understand Rowland meant when he said 'everything is all fixed'?" asked Landis.

"I thought he meant that the Detroit team was going to 'slough' to us."

"The Detroit pitchers didn't seem to be putting much on the ball and there was lots of base stealing."

"Do you remember any talk among the Sox players about 'sloughing' that series?"

KNEW GAMES WERE FIXED.

"No, I don't recall any talk now," said Risberg, "until we got to the Ansonia Hotel (in New York) about two weeks later."

"When you played in those four games," asked Landis, "did you know you were playing in fixed games?"

"Yes, sir," replied Risberg.

The commissioner pressed Risberg for further details about Collins' remark on Dyer's play and drew the assertion that Risberg understood Collins to mean Dyer's misplay was "intentionally terrible."

"Willie Mitchell pitched that first game," Landis said. "Do you remember anything about Mitchell's pitching that day?"

"No, sir."

PITCHERS NOT TRYING.

The commissioner drew from Risberg the statement that he understood Rowland's remark as meaning that the Detroit pitchers were not trying very hard.

"I know when I was at bat once," said Risberg, "I got a pitch which didn't have much on it. The ball didn't go past me."

"Did any of the other Sox players say anything about Mitchell's work?" asked Landis.

"I don't remember that they did."

"Cunningham pitched that afternoon game," said Landis, as Cunningham squeezed into the office.

The box score of the afteroon game was dug up to refresh Risberg's memory.

LOTS OF STOLEN BASES.

"The official score that day shows Cunningham went clear through the game," said Landis.

"Do you recall anything about Cunningham's work While you were up to bat, he wasn't bearing down or was easing up?" asked Landis.

"I don't recall anything about the pitching of that game," replied Risberg. "There were lots of stolen bases."

"Did it look like Stanage (Detroit catcher) was not trying to cut the base runners off?" asked Landis.

"It seemed like they were getting an awful lead before Oscar (Stanage) let the ball go," said Risberg.

NOT MUCH ON THE BAT.

"Do you remember anything peculiar about the two games next day?" asked Landis.

"No except that the pitchers were not putting much on the ball."

"Ehmke and James pitched the first game and Boland and James pitched the second game," said Landis. "Don't you recall something about their work?"

"No, I don't remember," said Risberg. "I thought when I was up to bat that the pitchers were pretty easy to us."

HISS DR. WARK IN BOBCAT CHAPEL

Buckhannon, W. Va., Jan. 5 (A. P.)—Student animosity against a recent ruling curtailing athletics at West Virginia Wesleyan College has broken out with Dr. Homer E. Wark, president, the principal target for undergraduate criticism.

After Dr. Wark had been hissed at chapel services there were rumors on the campus that students might resort to a strike against Dr. Wark's order restricting athletic activities at the college in order to provide funds for a new chair of theology.

Although the president took no direct notice of the chapel demonstration, he announced a special chapel session for today at which he will discuss in detail the reasons which guided the board of trustees and himself in deciding to curtail athletics.

Some persons close to the situation hoped this would quiet in a large measure criticism of the president's policies. All students were ordered to attend the special session or suffer a reduction in their grades.

The chapel demonstration was not the only indication of undergraduate wrath against the president. Students with early morning classes reported they had seen an effigy of Dr. Wark hanging from a tree at the main gate of the college campus. But it was removed before a majority of the students had seen it. Newspapers in various sections of the State also have expressed opposition to the athletic ruling editorially.

Immediately after the athletics were ordered curtailed Dr. Wark denounced the methods by which he said they had been conducted. He said he himself knew that athletes at Wesleyan were being paid as much as $500 a year for their services and that many were being brought in from outside the State.

Risberg Fails to Show in A. M. and Delays Trial

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 5.—The scandal trial, called for this morning, was put off until 1:30, because Risberg, who made the charges, failed to appear until that time. He phoned Judge Landis, and told the Commissioner he would not be there, without offering any reasons.

There were rumors of kidnaping and other things, but Risberg walked into the council chamber in the afternoon, shortly after the man he had accused gathered.

RUNYON SAYS

OUT in the late Bat Masterson's old home town of Dodge City, Kansas, a new heavyweight is kicking up a terrific sensation. The boys come from far and near to peek at him and marvel that such things can be.

His name is Hoot Burger. He is a native of Dodge City in the days when Bat Masterson was a most efficient, two-handed officer of the law. Dodge City was the cow puncher capital of the world and the bark of the merry six shooter was the only music the citizens really enjoyed.

Damon Runyon

That was before Bat Masterson came to New York to take his place as the most fearless boxing critic of his times, and to call most of the heavyweights "bohunks." I hope and trust that Dodge City has not produced a "bohunk," or the shade of Bat Masterson will rest uneasy in that Valhalla of courageous souls where it undoubtedly abides.

It seems that Hoot Burger got his boxing start around Cripple Creek up in the mountains of Colorado (that's gold in them thar hills) by [illegible] a lot of [illegible] young gents. Oddly enough, that is where Mr. Jack Dempsey started.

Fast as Lightning or Maybe Faster

HOOT BURGER is now twenty-two years old, six feet three inches tall, and weighs 190 pounds—a little lathy, perhaps, for the ideal heavyweight, but the proper heft. He has a reach of 81 inches, and said to be as fast as lightning, or maybe a trifle faster.

He started out under the management of Harold Rapple, an [illegible] jockey, now in business in Bat Masterson's old home town, but it appears that he is now directed by Mike Curran, who brought Phil Salvadore, the California lightweight East some years ago.

Hoot Burger had scored twenty three consecutive knockouts according to the last returns submitted to me, and most of them seem to have been one-round affairs. True, most of his opponents were strictly of the "bohunk" variety, but on such fodder do our great heavyweights feed in their youth.

I note in his record such names as Soldier Putch, Bob Smith, Chuck Johnson, Herb Beltz, Dutch Moser, Bull Yengling and Tiny Bill Morris and while I confess that these monickers leave me frigid [illegible] mean something out there in the large, extended spaces.

HIS most notable achievement, perhaps, was his [illegible] knockout of Young Jack Dempsey up in Portland, Oregon, last Summer when Young Jack was considered something of a fighter. Hoot Burger was on the floor five times in the first two rounds but knocked Young Jack down six times in [illegible].

This demonstration would indicate that Hoot Burger can take a pasting, which is the one thing [illegible] know about a [illegible] heavyweight. They [illegible] good when [illegible] knocking [illegible] other [illegible] down [illegible] they are themselves knocked down. Will they get up and go on.

Burger Goes on Trail of Stribling

I NEVER thought much of Mr. Monte Munn, the ex-legislator from Nebraska, until I saw him in his last fight with Knut Hansen, the Wisconsin Swede. On that occasion Mr. Munn took a jolly good shellacking, and went on to the finish. I have revised my estimate of Mr. Munn, on that exhibition.

I mean to say I now think he may get somewhere if he will only forget a few of the things he has been taught, notably caution, and go there and belt away at the boys. He is so big, and strong and punches so hard that few could stand up long under a sustained attack from him.

IN any event, let us consider Hoot Burger present and accounted for [illegible] the [illegible] of heavyweight prospects of 1927. He must [illegible] because it takes something to bowl even the "Bohunks."

U. S. Poloists Open Hard Campaign

New York, Jan. 5 (A.P.)—Intensive preparation for defense of the International polo cup [illegible] America against an invading B[illegible] team next September will [illegible] this month, the United States [illegible] Association has disclosed.

Tommy Hitchcock, Jr., [illegible] shares with Devereux Milburn [illegible] rank of ten goal handicap player [illegible] this country, plans an active campaign this winter in California. Milburn, famous American figure [illegible] international polo for many years, expects to play in Florida. They will be joined by at least ten other players under consideration for [illegible].

Included in this list [illegible] Watson Webb and Malcolm Stevenson [illegible] goal handicap players [illegible] W. Hopping, L. E. Stoddard, [illegible] Pedley [illegible] P. Perkins, and R. E. Strawbridge eight goals; Captain P. P. Rodes and J. Cheever Cowdin seven goals, and Stephen Sanford six goals.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Los Angeles—Harry (Kid) Brown [illegible] delphia, beat Johnny Adams, San Bernardino (10).

Seattle—John Lester Johnson, New York, defeated Tiny Herman, Tacoma (6).

BADGERS ELECT NEW FOOTBALL COACH

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 5 (A.P.)—Glenn F. Thistlethwaite, football coach at Northwestern University for the past [illegible] has been [illegible] University of Wisconsin [illegible] the Milwaukee Sentinel [illegible] George Little.

Little, [illegible] Wisconsin two years ago [illegible] University of Michigan [illegible] assistant to [illegible] heretofore has served [illegible] and [illegible] will center his entire attention [illegible] duties in the future.

Yale Board Brands Scandal Evidence Insufficient

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Jan. 5—Joe Wood, Yale baseball coach, will be allowed to hold his position as far as anything yet presented in the baseball scandal linking his name with Cobb and Speaker on the charge of betting on a fixed baseball game is concerned, it was stated today by the Yale athletic board of control.

An announcement made [illegible] Prof. George H. Nettleton, [illegible] said that the evidence presented was altogether insufficient [illegible] adverse [illegible] against the former American League star.

AFTER LONG MEETING.

Wood's case came before [illegible] board in a meeting [illegible] up to [illegible] in conjunction with the Wood [illegible] lasted until early this morning. The board considered every bit of evidence which could be secured and voted that Wood had not been proven guilty of any [illegible] his character [illegible].

The board [illegible] statement, has asserted [illegible] consider any new evidence which [illegible] arise.

Wood did not appear at the meeting. His case has been examined [illegible] Professor Nettleton, [illegible] Woodcock, business manager of the Yale Athletic Association, and [illegible] Burnside Winslow, chairman of the Yale baseball committee and their report was taken and indorsed by the board. Mr. Winslow and Mr. Woodcock [illegible] expressed themselves as impressed by the lack [illegible].

LAWYERS OFFER AID.

Miss Barrett Out of Catalina Swim

Los Angeles, Jan. 5 (A.P.)—Traffic congestion [illegible] channel between Santa Catalina Island and the California mainland January 15, when swimmers will throng the waters in a try for the $40,000 prize money offered by William Wrigley, Jr., was lessened to the extent of one mermaid today when Miss Clarabelle Barrett, New Rochelle (N. Y.) school teacher, withdrew.

Miss Barrett, who gained fame by her plucky fight against the English Channel, said that currents of extremely cold water to be encountered by the swimmer in the California event are a barrier which no contestant can hope to overcome.

Gene Is Wise

Schaaf a Prospect
If Not Rushed
Scandal Gets Air

GENE WILL NOT LET GOLD GOOSE ESCAPE

GENE TUNNEY, heavyweight, thespian, lover of art and champion of the world, evidently believes in picking while the picking is good. He has let it be known that he intends to fight next Summer. He has invited the promoters to talk to him, ready to wear as he listens the aloof and bored air that a critic of G. B. Shaw usually assumes.

Gene is a smart young man. Just now he can demand a match and ask for a record payment. He has set $750,000 as his minimum, and will want enough in advance to make the bag man put on a real show. That apparently gives all the promoters an equal chance to come through. But Tex Rickard seems to be the only one in sight who can meet the specifications.

Nick Flatley

Tex has handled the million-dollar gate propositions with great success. He knows the big money racket. The other business men who would like to horn in on such a prodigious melon have never been up with the large money. They can neither produce the spot cash necessary nor guarantee a successful show.

This runs them out of the picture, and at the same time breaks no promises for Mister Tunney. They have the same chance as Tex, and it isn't Gene's fault if they can't come through. The new champion probably can see that the day of the big gates, the preposterous purses is wearing along. Murmurs of commission changes, woman State directors and things point that way.

Tunney could stall along with theatrical contracts for a couple of years. But he can figure that a million-dollar box office might be a memory when he wanted to come back to the resin. Gene can pick his own opponent, regardless of what we hear of eliminations. There are a couple of popular contenders he could lick without bother. Others might trouble him. He can take on a comparatively soft one this year, get a fortune for it, and wait till '28 for a battle with the bird who looms best of all the claimants.

Mister Tunney may be a bit of a high hatter, but he knows his dollar marks.

HERE'S A KID WITH A WONDERFUL CHANCE

ERNIE SCHAAF, amateur boxer, has fame and fortune in front of him if he isn't rushed along too fast. Ernie just now is the best heavyweight the world knows, outside the professional ranks. He's tall and husky, fast, and only eighteen years old. And he packs a punch that will knock down walls, in both hands.

These qualifications make him a fine prospect for the big dough class. The kid could step in and knock off quite a few of the chaps who swing the mittens for money. He isn't ready yet. He has a lot to learn.

He can pick it up by marching ahead gradually. Phil Schlossberg, his manager—the good amateurs have 'em now—realizes this. He will not shoot his boy after one fair purse and have him ruined. That has happened to many a promising kid hereabouts. We recall Billy Nixon, Dave Deshler, George Alger and others. So does Schlossberg.

If he recalls it hard enough, and isn't tempted by the gold, he will have a real fighter chasing the millions in a year or two. Any kid with the weight, sock and courage has possibilities. And Schaaf has more than the average amount of all three essentials.

BASEBALL'S funeral song seems to be—Remember the Day

We can now understand why the old-time players made it so tough for the rookies to break in. They didn't want the kids to cut into the presents

SCANDAL GETS PLENTY OF AIR TODAY

BASEBALL scandal gets another large portion of the air today. The Judge, the players and Risberg foregather in Chicago, and the ensuing breeze will be heard for the rest of the week. From where we see things, it would appear that the combined athletes will outtalk and outreason the lone accuser.

Athletes aren't famous for brains, as a rule, but a gathering of thirty or fifty should result in a verdict of some sort. It's a cinch that the boys will mull over their testimony in advance. If they are exonerated, nobody will be surprised. If they're not, the populace will be equally startled. The combination of old charges by an exiled player hasn't meant much to anybody but the space writers, and the gossipers.

20 NAMES ELIMINATED FROM B. C. H. COACH LIST

Twenty coaches were eliminated as candidates for the much sought Boston High coaching assignment today, leaving the names of Bill [illegible], Steve Patten, Art McManus and "Chick" Gagnon as possible successors to Heaphy, who revisits [illegible] College next Fall in the capacity of assistant gridiron coach. The school directors will come to a decision at the next meeting, whose date has not been decided upon as yet.

Gagnon, the dark horse in the field, was a triple threat at Holy Cross and one of the best all-around athletes ever to enroll with the Crusaders. Each person named is equal to the task, and it would be unfair to express any favoritism.

U. S. BASEBALL CONTROL BILL ILLEGAL

Washington, Jan. 5 (I. N. S.)—Representative Kelly (R.) of Pennsylvania today virtually decided to drop his proposed bill for control of organized baseball through a Federal commission.

After a conference with the attorney for the Federal Trade Commission, Kelly said there appeared little hope to get around the Supreme Court decision which held that baseball was not interstate commerce.

Kelly is making a study to determine whether control can be applied through the laws against gambling.

U. S. and British Golf Dates Fixed

New York, Jan. 5 (A. P.)—American and British golf officials have buried the hatchet and international competition on the links once more is in prospect.

The controversy over open championship dates, resulting from the fixing of both the British and American title events for the week of June 20, has been settled with a change on both sides of the Atlantic. The American fixture has been moved ahead to June 14, 15 and 16, while the British championship has been set back to the week beginning July 11.

The Truce brought no change in the plans of Bobby Jones, however. The winner of both titles last year reiterated his intention to remain on this side of the Atlantic next Summer, thus passing up an opportunity to defend the British championship.

The compromise opens the way, however, to an invasion of this country by a team of British professionals, which will oppose an American contingent for possession of the International Ryder trophy. The cup was won last year by British pros in a series of matches abroad.

TY COBB USES MAGIC LINIMENT KEEPS FREE OF ACHES AND PAINS

If Reader Feels Stiff, Lame, Rheumatic, Here Is a Tip From "Ty"

LINIMENT KEEPS YOU LIMBER, SPRY, SUPPLE

Men and women who suffer with lame, stiff, achy backs, joints or muscles, and would like to be free of such troubles should take a tip from Big League Stars like Ty Cobb.

Ty Cobb says: "A bad injury to my leg which I thought would prevent me playing baseball for a long time was quickly relieved by using Mike Martin's Liniment. I attribute my complete and quick recovery to Mike's Liniment and recommend it highly."

Big League Stars couldn't play ball if crippled up with aches, pains, swollen, stiff joints or rheumatism. Whenever they get that way no time is lost in quickly relieving the trouble. Mike Martin's Liniment is a higher priced, more expensive liniment than ordinary remedies, but it is worth the difference—quicker, sure, safer and better—more pleasant to use also. It is unquestionably the best money can buy. High priced "Stars" wouldn't fool with anything but the best.

With each bottle of Mike Martin's Liniment you buy at the drug store comes a folder telling just how this famous trainer treats various aches, pains, joints and different rheumatic troubles, lame back, etc. Twenty-five years' experience makes him probably the world's greatest expert on such troubles. Take Ty Cobb's tip. Get a bottle, at drug store, or write name and address plainly and send with a dollar bill for large bottle, postage paid to Mike Martin, Trainer Washington Ball Club, Brentwood, Md.

This Should Hearten Bidders Who Don't Hold Good Cards

Hartford, Ct., Jan. 5 (A.P.)—A bid of seven no-trumps by E. B. Redfield, Jr., doubled and then redoubled by Cyrus Stevens, Redfield's partner, netted Redfield and Stevens 635 points in a bridge game during the noon hour in the office of the insurance company by which both men are employed.

The original bid was one heart by one of their opponents. Redfield took the first trick in hearts and then won the twelve remaining tricks.

Tavoleri to Box on Dilboy Card

Billy Brusima of Worcester and Joe Tavoleri of the North End, who made such a hit at the recent international show at Mechanics Building, winning their respective classes, will be seen tomorrow night at the regular amateur show of the Dilboy Post at K. of C. Hall, Somerville.

Another entry that will come in for considerable attention is that of Sam Sullivan, entered in the heavyweight class. Sullivan is remembered as a former twirler of the Philadelphia Nationals.

Freddy Russo, chairman of the show, says he has the entries of plenty of boys who will offer stiff opposition to Brusima, Tavoleri and Sullivan, and the fans are assured of plenty of action.

N. Y. Board Approves Chapman-Bass Bout

New York, Jan. 5.—A return bout between Red Chapman of Boston and Benny Bass of Philadelphia, featherweight title contenders, was approved by the State Athletic Commission. According to present plans, they will meet in a 12-round bout February 4 in Madison Square Garden as the semi-final to the Bushey Graham-Phil Rosenberg bantamweight championship affair.

Bass won on a foul from Chapman last Saturday night at Madison Square Garden in the first round of a bout that was to have determined an opponent for Honeyboy Finnegan of Boston. The commission considered this result so unsatisfactory, however, that it ordered a return go, at the same time waiving in Chapman's case the usual suspension for fouling.

The decision indicates that the commission believes the Hub boy scored a K. O.

The commission tabled a request from Jack Bernstein, Yonkers, junior lightweight, to replace Babe Herman of California as an opponent for Tod Morgan of Seattle, titleholder, in a championship match in Madison Square Garden some time in February.

Morgan, who steps out of his class to fight Phil McGraw of Detroit at the Garden this Friday, has agreed to meet Herman. The latter was defeated last Saturday by Al Winkler of Philadelphia in Madison Square Garden.

The right to stop bouts when a participant is in danger of serious injury through punishment, hitherto the sole privilege of the referee, was vested also in the physicians assigned to boxing shows by the commission.

Chairman Farley was authorized to [illegible] the board's doctors as a result of the death of Benny Kenwood, New York featherweight boxer, following his collapse in a four-round preliminary contest last night.

INJURY JINX HITS HARVARD COURT TEAM

By TED LYNCH

With the scoring power of his quintet weakened, Coach Ed Wachter has chosen Jack Barbee as the mechanic to repair what once looked to be a powerful Harvard basketball team.

Mandy Greene, the Crimson center, has been put out of competition temporarily and Barbee has been picked to fill the vacancy in the game against Tech on Friday evening.

Barbee will be playing his first game at the center berth and his work will be watched closely. The Wachter style of play calls for a five-man attack and the shift from guard to pivot should not hamper the playing of the Crimson basketball player to any great extent.

Worren Coombs will [illegible] Barbee at guard. Coombs played nearly every game last year and gave a good account of himself. He has been aching for this chance of breaking into the varsity lineup this year and his accurate shooting promises to keep the Tech players on their toes covering him all evening.

L. I. WOMEN ORGANIZE EXCLUSIVE GOLF CLUB

New York, Jan. 5 (A.P.)—Organization of a new country club exclusively for women members, located in Westchester County between Greenwich, Ct. and Bedford, N. Y., has been announced by Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, former national golf champion. It will be known as the Women's Westchester Golf and Tennis Club, and if present plans materialize will be opened formally by the Summer of 1928.

The club will be the second of its kind in the country and modified somewhat after its predecessor, the Women's National Golf and Tennis Club of Glen Head, L. I. It is the hope of women golfers, Miss Collett explained, that such organizations as these will form the foundation for a nation wide group of clubs offering adequate facilities for holding future women's championship events.

B. C. HIGH TRACK MEN WORK OUT

Heaphy's Material Is Green, but Includes Some Promising Prospects

By EDDIE DONDERO.

Battling against most adverse conditions, Boston College High's track team, remnants of the Maroon and Gold club which figured so prominently on the wooden saucer a year ago, will take part in the annual interclass games this afternoon on the newly constructed track in the schoolyard. Approximately 100 anklers with little or no experience have contributed their earnest attention toward making the campaign a successful one.

Ever since the announcement concerning his departure as track, baseball and football mentor at the Eaglet institution Jack Heaphy is the most pessimistic coach in this section. Jack refuses to comment on the prospects on any team, merely whispering that records will speak for themselves.

With but a few letter men on hand, the track squad captained by John Donahue, is deemed a basement occupation in the monster Winter carnivals held yearly under the auspices of the Boston Athletic Association and other local promoters. In the past seasons the Maroon and Gold flyers could always be depended upon to finish among the leaders at any meet, regardless of its importance.

TRYOUTS TODAY.

[illegible] This puzzling question has been asked several [illegible] The stop watch will be the indicator, and only on a few occasions does the ticker mislead anyone if it is handled properly.

Captain John Donahue excels in the 300-yard event, besides carrying the baton in the anchor position on the relay team, and is easily the outstanding speed artist. In recent workouts he has been closely pressed by John O'Shea, a diminutive lad with excellent prospects.

O'Shea undoubtedly will improve. He has speed to burn, but as yet he is as green as grass. He runs a race on pure nerve without taking advantage of the inside, and oftentimes he misjudges the distances, a failure that most new athletes have a hard time overcoming. Under the protecting wing of Coach Heaphy, Johnny, with his mercurial heels, should erase a few records before the curtain is rung down on the season.

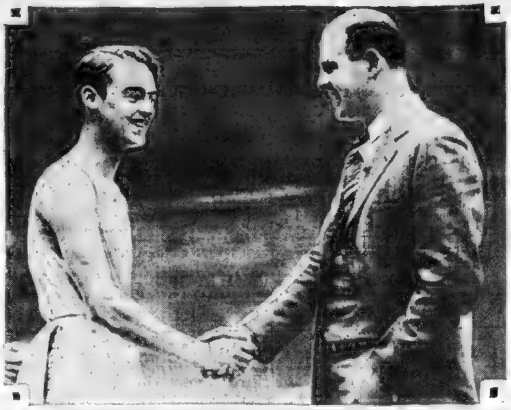
SWAN BIG BIRD.

Joe Swan, a big, strapping youth, who piloted the gridiron machine to the Jesuit school title, weighs 205 pounds and his work in the century sprint has been sensational to say the least. Joe is not a 10 second man yet, but has the "makings" of a champion. He is of the Al Miller type and moves his huge stature over the distance in whirlwind fashion.

His brother, Pat Swan, is a shot putter who, with a little seasoning, is due to make an impressive showing. Richard Hickey, George Green, Richard Gorman, James Fitzpatrick and Dowling are specialists at the middle distance. To date none of the performances turned in by them has been of high calibre, but it's early yet and too much cannot be expected.

In the field events the South End school is decidedly weak. The gymnasium is not suitable for practice and the centre of the board track is covered by a mantle of ice. This apparently has kept the high and broad jumpers under cover, while weight throwers are by no means plentiful.

EAGLETS TRY TO FLY OVER ICE



DEFYING MR. JACK FROST

The Boston College High track squad must have its daily exercise, weather or no. They scamper around the high school yard and are in good trim for the Winter meets. Above is Captain John Donahue and Coach Heaphy congratulating themselves for not freezing to death. Posing keeps coach from getting hot-headed.

FOUR GAMES ADDED TO B. C. ICE LIST

Boston College has at last found some teams that [illegible] to meet her on the ice. Manager Frank Sullivan, with the assistance of George V. Brown of [illegible] Arena has arranged for [illegible] more are [illegible]

Boston [illegible] have been [illegible] all of the college teams [illegible] part of the [illegible] for seven years. Dartmouth, Yale and Princeton were approached this season, but did not have room for the Eagle on their schedules. Negotiations with Harvard, that looked so promising for awhile, suddenly fell through.

The Notre Dame six, which plays Harvard at the Arena on Friday night, could not see its way clear to meet the locals.

The new University Club team provides the second tussle for the local icemen on Friday evening, January 14, at the Arena.

Boston College's first game on their Western tour will be with West Point at the Army's rink. Hamilton College, whom the Eagles met and defeated last season.

The first contest in the inter-city series will be with Boston University on January 28. Technology is the third team in this round-robin competition.

The fourth date on the Maroon and Gold's schedule finds the Laval College team of Quebec visiting the Hub on Feb. 9. This team is a newcomer on the Eagle's roster.

Hagen Says Boston Greatly in Need of New Public Course

By BILL GRIMES.

ONE of the chief reasons for Walter Hagen, the American champion, being the greatest golfer of all time is the keen interest he takes in every department of the game. He makes it a point to keep himself posted on the golfing situations throughout the country. Whenever a movement is started for the betterment of golf, Walter Hagen lends his assistance.

The writer received a letter from "The Haig" this morning which the champion wrote while on his way back from California to Florida, and in which he wants to go on record as highly favoring the proposed public golf course at Fowl Meadows. The letter is as follows:

San Antonio, Texas.

Dear Bill,

Having read of the public golf course Rep. Bateman is trying to put over in Greater Boston in an American which one of Bob Harlow's home town friends sent him, I thought I would drop you a few lines and let you know that in my opinion there is no city in this country more in need or more deserving of public golf courses than Boston.

As you know, I spend most of my life traveling from one end of the country to the other playing in exhibitions and championships golf matches. During these tours I have a fine opportunity to watch the growth of the game. Needless to say it is flourishing in every section. In fact in many cities the demand greatly exceeds the supply.

Although I have never played your course at Franklin Park, I have seen the lay out and went around one day with Pat Doyle. It is an ideal course and if [illegible] one of the best in New England [illegible] course play in Boston. I left Franklin Park with two impressions which I have carried ever since. The first was the allowing of beginners to play on the same course with the seasoned golfers and the other was that no boys and girls were allowed on the course.

Every public course in this country is taxed to its capacity on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays and unless the play goes along smoothly a large number of players are prevented from getting in their round. Even on courses from which beginners are barred the going is slow, but at Boston the tees are crowded and players are forced to wait from ten to fifteen and twenty minutes after finishing each hole. It is impossible for any player to be at the top of his game unless he or she are able to play along without long delays. The waits take the edge off and many golfers who are new at the game become discouraged and quit, while if they were allowed to go along without interruptions they would stick to the game.

Not only do the beginners slow up the going but they are in danger of serious injury due to their ignorance. They do not appreciate the dangers one invites by walking across a fairway while players are in action. Also their inability to control their shots endangers the lives of the other players.

Any district that has sent such an array of young golfers out in quest of national honors as Francis Ouimet, Jesse Guilford, Freddie Wright, and that young junior champion, Jimmie Conroy, should be the first to realize the benefits of golf, and do everything within its power to encourage the game. Through Ouimet, Guilford, Wright and the many other fine golfers in and around your city, Boston rates well up in the golf world.

I wish that you would keep me in touch with this new public course. I will be at Pasadena in about two weeks, so address all correspondence to the Pasadena Country Club.

WIDE REQUIRES SIX WEEKS TO TRAIN

New York, Jan. 5 (A.P.)—Six weeks of training will be required [illegible] Wide before the American [illegible] first glimpse of the Swedish running sensation in [illegible]

The [illegible] of Paavo Nurmi who arrived in this country yesterday on the Berengaria primarily to study the American educational system, disclosed that he has not been in action since last September and is eight pounds overweight. He will take his workouts at the Newark A. C., Newark, N. J., under Coach Carl Anderson.

A. A. U. officials announced that they would take steps to oppose guidance of Wide in this country by a manager. Claiming that the troubles of Nurmi and Charley Hoff [illegible] of such arrangements, President Murray Hulbert said he could see "no reason why an amateur athlete should have a manager."

GAIL ROBINSON FIRST TO TRY NEW JUMP SCHEME

New York, Jan. 5 (A.P.)—New high jump standards, designed to prevent alleged "diving" through the use of the arm in holding the cross bar steady, will be tried out Saturday night at the first major metropolitan track meet. Gail Robinson, metropolitan indoor champion, will be one of the first to soar over the test apparatus.

GLENNA COLLETT ENTERS ONLY TWO TOURNAMENTS

New York, Jan. 5 (A.P.)—Miss Glenna Collett's plans for Winter competition, disclosed today, include participation in only two major golf fixtures. These are the Bahamas tournament at Nassau late this month and the North and South championship at Pinehurst, N. C., in March.

The former national womens' champion will sail for Nassau January 14, she said, accompanied by Mrs. John Renwick, Miss Rosamond Sherwood, Mrs. Norman K. Toerge of New York and Mrs. Fred C. Letts of Chicago.

Star Boxers Give Aid to 8 Mason Orphans

By JACK CONWAY

"MAY God bless each and every one of them."

The eight orphan children of the late Jack Mason of Charlestown feel much like Tiny Tim, the child of the creative mind of Charles Dickens. Tonight as they kneel in prayer in their humble home in Charlestown they will ask that the blessings of another world be poured down on those who will make the monster testimonial in their behalf at Winter Garden Ballroom, City square, Charlestown, a success this evening.

Eight little voices will join in a prayer which will come from the heart. The youngest of the Mason children is two, the oldest eighteen.

Jack Conway

Mother and father have been claimed by death. An older brother was struck down in an automobile accident a year ago.

Jack Mason was a popular citizen in Charlestown. It was natural that his friends should rally to the aid of his little family.

With Tom Green of the City Council as chairman and George Curran, Henry Meyers, Joe Brennan and a legion more helping out tonight's testimonial was arranged.

It will be a gathering of "Who's Who" in sport. Jack Sharkey, Jim Maloney, Pat McCarthy, Al Mello, Sammy Fuller and virtually every other leading light in New England boxing will be there.

Ned McGuire, Stanley Stasiak and the knights of the mat will do their stuff.

The stars of the theatrical world world also will be there. It will be a brilliant show, one that no promoter could put on if he were obliged to pay those who will appear.

Boxers, wrestlers and stage folks have always been generous with their services for worthy causes.

And who could turn a deaf ear to the plea of eight orphan children? Of course you are going to attend this fine entertainment tonight?

BOBBY GOLDMAN has signed Al Mello, sensational Lowell welterweight, to box under the directionrection of Tex Rickard in New York. Mello will make his first New York appearance in February.

It was originally planned to have Mello battle Willie Harmon of New York in a ten-round bout at New Madison Square Garden on February 4 as the semi-final to the Eddie Roberts-Joe Dundee bout. The winners of these two tussles were then to meet to decide which should tackle Pete Latzo for the welterweight crown.

The Roberts-Dundee show was then moved ahead to January 14. It is impossible for Mello to box Harmon on this date as he will not be twenty-one years old until January 31. The New York boxing law does not permit battlers under twenty-one to engage in other than a six-round bout.

Matchmaker Tom Goodwin of the Suffolk A. A. has been trying to arrange for a tussle between Meyer Cohen of Holyoke, who won the New England welterweight crown by defeating George (Kid) Lee, and Mello. Cohen's managers have spurned a $5,000 bid for the services of their protege.

YOUNG HAPPY, Boston newspaper merchant who saw the recent Chapman-Bass bout, tells me that the Dorchester featherweight knocked out his rival. Happy had a seat close to the ring and was in a position to see the punch. He maintains it was fair by almost a foot.

"Bass took the easiest way out," said Happy. "The referee started to count after Bass went down, but stopped counting when Phil Glassman, Bass' manager claimed foul. The crowd was disgusted with the ending of the bout and charged that Bass quit."

FABER SCOFFS AT CHARGES

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Urban (Red) Faber, Sox pitcher in 1917 and still one of the leading flingers of the club [illegible] statement on the White Sox donation to Detroit.

"We were playing the Athletics," he said, "at the same time Detroit was playing its Boston series in September, 1917. Somebody on the bench, noticing from the scoreboard that Detroit was beating Boston, said: 'We ought to make those fellows (Detroit) a present for beating Boston.'

"The next day in New York Chick Gandil came to me to collect this money for the present to Detroit and I gave him a check for my share of $45 and the shares of several others of the boys who did not have any money along with them.

"I never heard anything about [illegible] Tigers [illegible] three-game series of [illegible] over Boston. Risberg's charges are the bunk."

LOU BOGASH READY TO BATTLE ALL COMERS

Lou Bogash, the middleweight champion of New England, who made a big hit the other night at Lynn, by knocking out Jimmy Amato White, making his tenth straight win is now on the trial of Jack Delaney, Paul Berlenbach, Mickey Walker, or Tiger Flowers. The former Bridgeport ironman looked like a million dollars winning over White who in two previous starts beat Frankie Bank of Springfield in two great fights at Mechanics building.

Bogash today is New England's outstanding middleweight and it is only a question of time that the satisfactory middleweight performer will be in there battling for the middleweight crown. Eddie Mack, the manager of the New England middleweight champion, is willing to let Bogash battle any middleweight or heavyweight in the world.

Friendly Meats Which Do Not Add Weight

By MARTHA LEE

HAVING done our duty by soups yesterday, it seems no more than fair and right to let the light shine on meats today. I usually feel guilty when I talk of cakes and pies and candies, knowing that they are taboo for so many of you, but meat has its place in the menu of both the would-be-thins and the would-be-fats.

The path to youth, loveliness and joy is to eat and stay slender—not so easy as it sounds. But one consolation is the rich meats that are allowed.

I am earnestly assured by friends whose figures I envy that two boiled lamb chops accompanied by two slices of pineapple heated in the broiling pan, oven-baked toast, ginger ale and nothing more will melt off the pounds if eaten faithfully for dinner day after day.

And after the goal has been reached, there are countless meat delights in store; cream chicken with rice and peas served with iceberg lettuce with Roquefort dressing and ginger jelly or to satisfy the inherited taste from our British ancestors, beef and kidney ragout with shredded lettuce salad, grilled apples and ginger ale. Another mouth-watering combination is ham baked in ginger ale served with boiled sweet potatoes, creamed celery, lettuce salad and butterscotch pie.

Meat is often slandered because it is poorly cooked and therefore indigestible.

One of the most attractive new fashions in meat is the mixed grill, usually a combination of chops, sausage, liver and bacon. One large loin lamb chop is allowed for every service and the kidney is left in the chop. Carefully trimmed veal chops can be used if preferred.

Dust the chops with salt and pepper and broil them to a turn. Some people broil the entire grill—sausages, tomatoes, mushrooms and bacon in the broiler at the same time, but I prefer to cook my sausages and fixings separately. One delicious grill consists of a chop, a sausage, a mushroom cap, broiled or fried sliced tomato (cut in thick slices and dip in flour or crumbs first) and two or three slices of broiled sweet potatoes. The chop is arranged on toast with the vegetables and sausages alternately around the edge.

Supreme of chicken is really chicken fricassee a bit glorified. For the average family you will need a three-pound chicken cut for fricassee. Almost cover this with boiling salted water and simmer until chicken is very tender—about two hours. Pour off the stock and set away to cool. Remove the skin from the chicken meanwhile.

Skim off the fat from the chicken stock and use three tablespoons of it for the sauce. Heat the three tablespoons of fat and add to it one-quarter cup of flour and one and one-half cups of the chicken stock. Stir until smooth. Season highly with salt and pepper.

Beat two egg yolks and add to one-half cup of thin cream. Stir this last of all into the sauce. Arrange the chicken on rounds of toast on a large platter. Pour the sauce over it. Pile fluffy boiled rice around the edges and dust with paprika and minced parsley.

Flank Steak with Tomato Sauce—One slice flank or round steak, two tablespoonfuls fat, one small onion, minced, three tablespoonfuls flour, six medium tomatoes, one tablespoonful margarine, one tablespoonful minced green pepper, one-quarter cupful milk.

Have the steak well pounded—the market man will do this for you—and rub both sides with as much flour as it will take up. Heat the fat in a skillet, and when very hot put in the meat and cook until done, turning often. Remove to a hot platter.

Slice the tomatoes without peeling about one-quarter inch thick, dip in flour, and saute in the pan in which the steak was cooked, turning carefully. Arrange around the meat. Add the margarine to the fat left in the pan, and when bubbling add the onion and the chopped green pepper. Cook until soft, being careful not to burn, and add the milk. Boil up and pour over the meat and tomatoes. Serve with mashed potatoes, boiled rice, or plain boiled macaroni.

Baconized Meat Balls—Four thin slices bacon, one cupful cracker crumbs, one-half cupful hot water, one pound ground round steak, one egg, one teaspoonful salt, one-eighth teaspoonful pepper, one-quarter teaspoonful onion salt, one-eighth teaspoonful celery salt, one-quarter teaspoonful sage, one-quarter teaspoonful allspice, two tablespoonfuls flour.

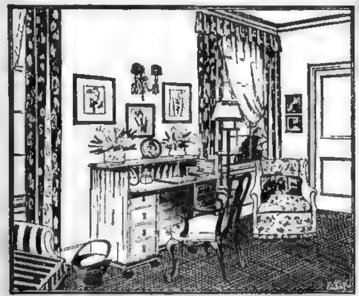
Cut the bacon into small cubes and saute until crisp. Add the cracker crumbs, stirring until well mixed. Then add the hot water and stir again. Turn into a mixing bowl and add the ground steak, the egg slightly beaten, the salt, pepper, onion salt, celery salt, sage and allspice.

Mix well, form into balls, and roll in flour. Saute well on all sides in hot fat and serve with a gravy made from the juices in the pan. This same mixture may be formed into a loaf and baked in a 400 degree F. oven.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

Furnishing the Home



By MARIAN MOORE

PERHAPS there is no fireplace in your living room, and no window suitably placed to form a centre of interest. Or perhaps your fireplace is so poorly designed, so clumsily proportioned, that you find it desirable to draw the attention to some other part of the room? Or maybe you want a room that is different?

In any case you will find it advisable to build up the decoration around some large and well designed piece of furniture, and the more unusual the piece may be the greater the individuality you will achieve. But remember that unusual does not mean odd or freakish.

The chairs drawn to the side of the desk create a natural gathering place and relieve with their message of comfort and sociability the business-like and matter-of-fact character always attached to a desk group. Flowers and pictures play very much the same part and the exquisite early American floor lamp is distinctly aristocratic and homelike. (c) A. H. B.

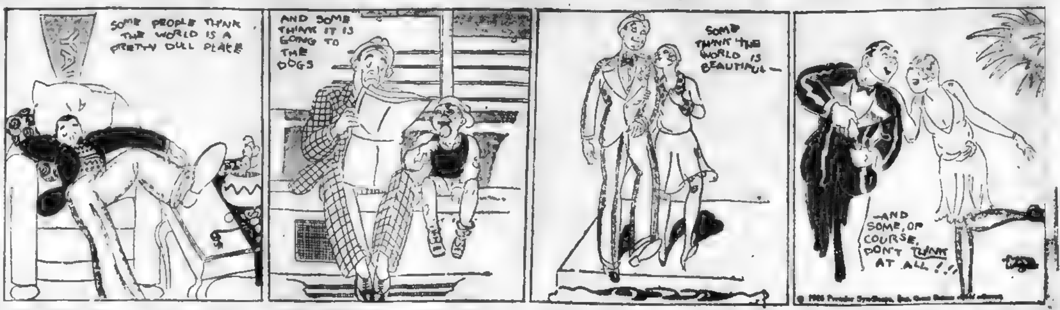
"You Said It, Marceline!" -:- On "Reflecting Beauty" -:- By Marceline d'Alro



SOME PEOPLE THINK THE WORLD IS A PRETTY DULL PLACE
AND SOME THINK IT IS GOING TO THE DOGS
SOME THINK THE WORLD IS BEAUTIFUL—
—AND SOME, OF COURSE, DON'T THINK AT ALL!!!

SOME PEOPLE think the WORLD is a pretty DULL place. Well, to the DULL ALL things ARE DULL. Therefore, it would be WISDOM on their part to KEEP such CONVICTIONS to themselves.

SOME PEOPLE think the world is going to the BOW-WOWS. THESE are the people who ARE Always BARKING and yapping, yet SELDOM BITE, and still LESS seldom FIGHT.

SOME PEOPLE think the world is BEAUTIFUL. THESE usually are ARTISTS. Or IN LOVE. They CREATE Their OWN beauty. ONE reflects the BEAUTY of LOVE and the other, LOVE of BEAUTY.

And SOME PEOPLE DON'T THINK at all. But THEY, Of course, must NOT be BLAMED, for perhaps they Have NOTHING to think WITH. And to THESE people, What a MESS this WORLD must look!

"The Making of a Husband"; Ann Lisle's Serial of Married Life

FOR a long time I lay there, merely drowsing, and then I began to think with [illegible] and annoying activity. I began to review the week just past and I found that its outstanding feature was the hurts and knocks and [illegible] it had given me.

The blocks and hindrances to business I had [illegible] the antagonism which [illegible] at Peter's office [illegible] upon me by the men with whom I tried to do business, the calm way Betty had taken possession of Ralph, and the [illegible] way which [illegible] of taking [illegible] out of my [illegible] just when I most wanted to have [illegible] around [illegible] the good faithful dog to [illegible] I have [illegible] for so many years [illegible]—all these were bad enough. But there were real agonies [illegible] having to do with [illegible] beings. These were woven of the warp and woof of life's tragedies.

First there was Irma's sad case. She did not rally from her [illegible] suffering that Peter's son might come into the world. And the [illegible] incubator baby did not thrive. Here was real tragedy—not merely a [illegible] row and the shipwreck of happiness such as was mine since the night when I had read Arlette's letter to Diane Petruzzi.

My very soul seemed to change on that night when I read the news of the divorce I had told Jim to get and which he had evidently [illegible] ahead to seek without communicating with me in any way. I knew I would hear from his lawyers soon. I would not make things easier for any one by lifting a finger to make myself available. I was bitter, hard when I thought how the news had come to me.

"Jim might have done me the courtesy to tell me he is divorcing me," I thought bitterly. "He needn't have been such a coward—and—yes, a cad. To let Arlette write it to Diane! To have me told in this roundabout way."

I determined that I would show life and people no more quarter than they had shown me. I would stop thinking that Ralph had a right to more than I could give him. I would take what he had to give me. That was [illegible]. And just as I came to this decision the telephone rang and Ralph's vibrant voice came over the wire.

"Had your beauty sleep and the forty winks [illegible] the good Sunday dozen you [illegible] after the [illegible] working for Irma all the week?" he asked gayly.

"[illegible]," I said. "I'm [illegible]. I'm getting harder every minute."

"Soon you'll be nicely jelled," Ralph laughed.

"I'm steel," I said. "Or ice. Or both. I'm going to be a taker from now on, Ralph. I warn you."

"Take me," [illegible]. "Or at least let me take you out to Montclare for lunch."

"All right," I said in confusion at this amazing [illegible] from the usually reverent and serious [illegible] so I quite forgot the [illegible] I had at my last visit to Montclare when I [illegible] walking home in the rain.

"How soon will you be ready to test my stunning little new roadster?" Ralph asked.

"A roadster!" I gasped. "That's not like you. That's a selfish car."

"You go on hardening and I'll go on selfishing and then we won't have a qualm about freezing the rest of the world out of the roadster. I'm free to confess I bought [illegible] to take a certain charming lady driving whenever she doesn't say me nay," Ralph laughed. "Is an hour's time enough for you—or must I champ at the bit longer than that?"

"Eleven thirty."

"I'll be ready at twelve," I cried, beginning to hurl off the covers. "I won't even stop for coffee, so you'll have to treat me to a breakfast lunch."

"To 'Brunch' and tea and dinner at seven. No dates with anyone but me today," commanded Ralph. "[illegible] nature's grace [illegible] down at the curb waiting for you to blow your horn."

Then I got up and fairly [illegible] into the bath and [illegible] under the shower and rubbed down and fluffed my hair and got into my clothes with the careless gaiety I had thought banished forever. But when I had put on my new gray Fall suit and pumps to match and the purple velour sport hat I had selected so carefully I felt [illegible] mood evaporating.

My Sunday in the country with Ralph was the first happy, care-free day I have spent since Jim went to Europe in pursuit of Arlette Valleau. Ralph was the gentlest, sweetest, most considerate host imaginable. Once, when we were sitting out in the grass at Parkview where we had gone for tea, he seized my hand and carried it to his lips and set it against his cheek with a sudden surge of passion that swept me into his arms a moment later and set his lips against mine with a hunger I found myself longing to assuage.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

ALL THAT GLISTENS IS NOT GOLD, but a touch of henna in the shampoo gives sun-gold tints to fair hair and freshness, life and lustre to the darker heads. A special preparation is the [illegible] secret of fashionable hair dressers. Not a dye and absolutely harmless. Will bring out a wealth of undiscovered beauty in your hair. 50c.

THE PINE TREE contributes to a special shampoo. Removes oil, dust and dandruff—leaves the hair silky soft, 40 and 75 cents.

THERE'S A PINE TREE SOAP, too. New, pure, refreshing. Agrees with many skins irritated by soaps less pure. 15 cents a cake. I'd advise buying half a dozen and letting them harden.

This Day in Our History

ON January 5, 1777, the use of floating mines first came into American history under the name, "Battle of the Kegs." In this instance the kegs or mines were set out to sink the British fleet at Philadelphia. The attempt failed.

Thrilling Romance of Youth in Boston

CHAPTER XXXI.

IT was the first Saturday of October when the young Jack Wallacks started back to town from their honeymoon.

"I hate to go," Honey Lou sighed, as she changed khaki shirt and breeches for her dark blue traveling dress. "I wonder if we'll ever be so happy again as we've been here?"

"I shall hate staying at your father's house for even a little while, Jackanapes," she went on, coming into his arms. "It's not because I don't like your people, because I do. But I love to have you all to myself so that I can kiss you and rumple up your hair until you look like a frightened Isaac, when I feel like it." She ruffled up his hair to show him what she meant and kissed the tip of his fine straight nose.

"I hate to go, too," Jack answered her. He held her close and looked down at her for a long moment. She was all purity and gay sweetness and passion, the things that a man most desires in the woman he loves. And she was his.

"Never mind, Honey Lou," he said. "It'll be only a few weeks. We'll soon have our own little home."

Honey Lou laughed. "With gray rugs and silk curtains and deep chairs!" she cried, holding his face between her hands, "and an ice cream freezer, and a watch dog! And we'll have all our friends in for Sunday night suppers, and I'll be the world's best cook—"

"How can you be the world's best cook, when you don't even know how to boil water?" he wanted to know.

"Don't ask me riddles when I'm day-dreaming!" Honey Lou snapped him up, and then went on:

"And we'll have little clipped yew trees on the front steps, and a garage and a flagged walk—and oh, Jack, I just can't believe we're so happy!"

His face was serious. "I don't know we're going to be able to afford a house for a while," he said quietly. "We'll have to start out on sort of a small scale. The factory isn't making much money just now, you know."

Honey Lou had not known it.

"Well, that's all right. We'll have a little flat then, where I can do every scrap of the work," she agreed cheerfully. "I'll soon learn how to do things. And I'd rather live in a box-car with you, Jack, than in marble halls with anybody else!"

He shook his head. "You won't have to live in a box-car and you won't have to do your own work," he said. "But we won't buy a house or fly high for a while. You see, I'm trying to get my dad to put more salesmen on the road. We've got to rustle up more business, and it's going to take real money to do it."

Honey Lou shook her head that was just the color of Autumn leaves with the sun on them. "I see," she said briskly. "And you can depend on me to help out all I can! I won't waste a nickel of our money."

Jack remembered that last little promise of hers a good many times in the next few months.

"And so they were married and lived happily ever after" is not always the end of a love story, these days.

More often it is only the beginning.

But Honey Lou Wallack, sitting beside her husband in a homeward bound train, felt sure that there was nothing ahead of them but smooth sailing and sunshine to the end of their days.

She would always love Jack in this breath-taking thrilling way that made her heart leap when he touched her, and he would always love her in the same way. She was sure of that.

The only thing that troubled her, as she sat watching the fields and villages streak past the windows of the train, was Ann Ludlow's panic-stricken letter. She made up her mind to go to see Ann just as soon as she had a minute to spare, and find out what kind of trouble Ann had fallen into.

"Maybe 'Grumpy's' fired her at last," she thought, frowning out at the flying scenery. "If he has I'll just make him take her back." But no, that couldn't be it. Ann had spoken of her trouble as "terrible trouble" in her letter.

It was "Grumpy" who met them at the station. He was limping up and down the platform, leaning heavily on his gold-headed cane, and looking for all the world like a retired old sea captain.

"Where's The Head?" Jack asked him when they were in the shabby town car that carried "Grumpy" to and from the factory every day.

"Gone to some fiddle-faddle party with Angela," he answered, wincing with pain as the car hit a bump. "I don't know what ails the women. They're never happy unless they're on the run all day long. They're never home. You watch this one of yours, Jack, or she'll soon be just like the rest of 'em! Gadding from morning to night!" He pinched Honey Lou's velvety cheek as he said it, and Honey Lou winked at him.

When they stopped before the old white colonial house of the Wallacks, Angela's car stood in the driveway.

But Angela, herself, was nowhere in sight.

"She ran home through the hedge when she saw you coming," The Head said to Jack, as she took him in her plump arms and kissed him. "It's nice to have you home, Boy. We've missed you."

But she did not kiss Honey Lou, and Honey Lou's heart felt stone-cold in her bosom as she followed the large rustling figure up the stairs to the room that was to be hers while she stayed in the house.

"Don't you want me to be in Jack's room with him?" she asked, when they stood in it, with her baggage on the floor at her feet.

"Just as you like. I thought you'd be more comfortable here, though," The Head answered drily. "You've a bathroom of your own, and a clothes closet." She went around the big comfortable bedroom, pulling up shades and switching on the wall lights as she spoke.

Honey Lou saw that she expected her to stay here right where she was—and so she stayed. The Head's word was law in that house and Honey Lou knew it only too well.

"Cheer up, old girl!" she said to her image in the looking-glass when she was alone, "you'll soon be in your own home, and then you can do as you like!"

The next morning Angela called at the house to take "Grumpy" and The Head to church in her blue automobile.

She came early, because she wanted to see Honey Lou, so she said.

Honey Lou was having a lonely breakfast in her lonely room when she tapped on the door.

"What are you doing here by yourself?" she asked, sitting down and offering Honey Lou a gold cigarette case. Angela never smoked, herself, but she always carried "fags" around for her friends.

"Oh, Jack's mother thought I needed this great big room for myself," Honey Lou answered. "Jack's right across the hall, though." She lit a cigarette.

"You'll soon have a place of your own, won't you?" Angela wanted to know, and Honey Lou nodded her head vigorously.

"Just as soon as we can!" she said. "We're just dying to start housekeeping—Jack and I!"

"I'd never have a house," Angela murmured, dreamily looking out of the window at the October sunshine. "I'd get a little flat that wouldn't keep me tied down if I were you."

She drew her furs around her, and said goodby. And Honey Lou thought no more about what she had said until months later.

Then she had very good reason to remember every word of it!

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

Fashion Fads

A Promising Proxy for the large, fluffy, shoulder flowers of chiffon are the huge, silk net "fluffs" that form twelveinch pompoms. Much more recent than the floral decoration, such charming chou forms a most flattering trimming when poised on the shoulder of an extremely decollete gown.

Sharing One Scheme—Sheer hose and glove silk bloomers carry out the same color scheme of the ensemble costume. Underwear is now being bought to match the dark, rich shades of the latest Winter frocks—pastel tones being more or less preferred for evening rather than daytime wear. Of course there are a great many women who will always insist upon wearing delicately tinted "undies" even under the most somberly hued frock.

A Taste for Claret is not necessarily confined to the palate, but can be interpreted in footwear fashions as well. Wine-toned leathers combine suede and crocodile in creating the most effective oxfords that Paris had designed for the Winter's street fashions.

'Golden Roads'; Gay Strikes Stan in Furious Rage

well! Speaking of little brown angels—

Penny and Stan came in without the formality of knocking. Stacia shouted

"This way, gents! Here's the bar! What'll it be—tiger's blood or TNT? Talk fast!"

"Say, our dinner was awfully moist," Penny protested, swaying a little. Both boys drank, however, and Stanley came to Gay, flushed rather unsteady, looking startlingly like his father. She shrunk from his touch.

"Stan, I want to go home."

Already she was out the door, snatching her wraps. He followed down the stairs, calling; caught her in the hallway below, reeled as he crushed her in his arms.

His kisses, wandering vaguely over her throat, her eyes, her mouth, affronted her as if they had been given by a drunken stranger. Love all soiled—beaten into the muck! She was too sick to struggle; too crushed with desolation.

Yet fury twisted through her as his arms fell abruptly; she struck him in the face. "Don't you ever speak to me again—you—oh, you—you!"

She turned, sobbing, with a swift, vivid impression of his dazed face fled.

A long trip across the city in a taxi with her heart shaking [illegible] miserable ride on the train; a ghastly [illegible] winding road. Life was topsy-turvy now; nothing was as it had been; even she, herself, was changed.

Late when she crept into bed, shivering.

Two o'clock when Christine, reeling toward [illegible] of [illegible] alcoholic fog, squirmed beyond Penny's hands, stumbled into the little bedroom, banged and locked the door, piled furniture against it.

Fists hammered the panels—Penny's fists. She sank upon the bed, slept in her clothes.

There were halting days for Gay after the night of Stacia Marinoff's party. Empty days, save for little, mocking memories.

His eyes, so boyish, so blue, regarding her gently; his mouth turned up at the corners. She would see his face so, and her hand would go to her throat.

She would feel his arms; hear him whisper, "Why, it never happened Gay! That was a dream. Well, how could she dream it of Stan?"

If he should come and say that! If he could say that and make it true!

No, the other was the dream. Stan by the lake in the moonlight, planning their years . . . .

Oh, she put on a brave face, these days. Helping Mary with the dishes, rolling Jaimie's hair into small, diabolical horns, listening for his chuckle.

"Where's the tall lad, Gay? He doesn't come to see Socrates any more."

"What a scheming Jaimie he is! Wanted to get rid of his big girl? Hunting her a beau, was he? Is that nice?"

But Jaimie saw her chin tremble and said no more.

Christine was oddly tactful after a question or two.

"Why so stubborn, Gay? They both were spiffed that night. What's the odds? You'll lose him sure if you keep on so ritzy."

"Right-o!" Gay managed to be flippant. Can't bother settling down to a steady."

"I think you're silly. Listen: Pen was crazy to go out and get married that night. Believe me, I'd have taken him up, too, if I'd thought we could have got through with it."

"You wouldn't, Christy! Marry a man when he's like that!"

"What's the difference? Being done all the time. How do you s'pose these Totsy Twinkletoes land their millionaires? Not when they're in their cold senses, you bet. Grab while they're passing, is the idea."

"Really! A man you care nothing for—"

"But I do care!" The yellow eyes shone. "Gay, I never thought I could care so much! There are times—honestly I could murder Peggy Maird. Always calling him, hanging around. She can't have him! I'll stop her—someway——"

Gay stared, looked away blushing, from that fierce eagerness. Christy in love at last; caught in her own snare! It was disturbing to her terrible, someway.

Stanley's desk was closed; gradually it accumulated a litter of old newspapers, circulars, the things nobody remembers to throw out.

The day after Gay had left him standing there in the hallway, the mark of her blow red across his drawn face, his eyes so dazed, a messenger brought her a box from an uptown florist.

It was gold n pink, all dewy and fragrant "sweetheart" roses, [illegible] box lined with varnished [illegible]. No word [illegible] them; he had [illegible] her heart. She intended to give them away—for a sudden tenderness [illegible] her down [illegible]. So she placed them in a bowl and kept them on her desk till they faded.

Stanley had gone to Bar Harbor, Christine told her. "Probably playing around with Mimi Brooks," her cousin added, spitefully.

Well, let him! Nothing to her any more; he was only a dream now, she was awake. "A good thing," she told herself. "We couldn't have got by. Two worlds, they can't meet. Better this way."

Then she heard he was home again; waited in dread lest he come; lest he stand in the door seeking her with his merry eyes. "Hello, Daffodil!" She could hear him say that in her heart.

One afternoon as she was leaving the home, she saw his roadster parked at the curb; saw him watching. Waiting for her. . . . She [illegible] Christine's arm [illegible] pulled her through a door at the side of the building.

"I don't want to see him, Christy. No use dragging along."

"Maybe you're right, ol' dear. They're a high-handed lot." Christine had quarreled with Penny; she was in a bitter mood. "He'll come again, though; his kind doesn't give up easily."

He did come again—[illegible] again. Gay formed the habit of creeping out like a hunted thing, always ready to scurry back and run away. Sometimes Stan stood beside the car; sometimes he loitered in the door, anxious, puzzled, rather wistful.

But she always eluded him; left him to wait without a sight of her.

Then there was an evening when she didn't see him. She ventured out fearfully, peering ahead. Into the street; on a little distance. . . .

He was there, at the corner. He had discovered the side door, taken up a position from which he could watch both entrances. He turned his head; she thought, as she rushed back, that he must have seen her.

She hurried up to the deserted office; went into a little waiting room so he might not find her if he came; sat down faintly.

Weary and unstrung, she dropped into thoughts as deep as sleep, sitting alone in the warm dusk. Much later she was aroused by voices.

Labor and Leisure

Love Makes Light of Weary Tasks

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

THERE is nothing so unromantic as a bucket, a scrub brush and a cake of high-powered soap, but at the same time they may be symbols of SOMETHING very romantic and beautiful. Can you imagine an aching back, red hands and a perspiring forehead being beautiful? It doesn't seem possible, but still, you know, everything done in the name of LOVE really deserves that qualifying adjective of beauty. She married John, who was just starting out in business, because she loved him and was not afraid to work for him until he could become financially successful.

Now, Love was rather overlooked at the wedding of the luxurious creature who married John's boss—in fact Cupid didn't shoot a single arrow. It was simply an affair of mutual convenience. This young wife has so much time and so little to do that often she just sits and sits and wonders why it is that she is so bored with life. Her floors are scrubbed by servants and all she really has to do is preside at her husband's table.

luged with outfits of a soft blue color. "She has many things of that shade, because her mother says she must match her blue eyes," explained one of the members [illegible] in the household.

Furthermore—here [illegible] thorn in her royal highness' side—she can't have any of the frilly [illegible] French lingerie that any American girl with an indulgent dad or on a pay envelope of her own, can gratify her feminine love of finery.

NOT PROPER FOR HER

"Such things are not proper for you to wear," is her mother's royal edict, and as a result Ileana's most intimate attire is chiefly of cotton—sheer and very fine, but cotton nevertheless. Some few garments are of linen and she has a limited number of very plain little silk things. Most of her underthings are beautifully worked with Rumanian embroidery and made on almost childish lines.

I might add, in passing, that the young lady's figure is being very carefully considered, for she usually wears some supple but nevertheless definitely supporting little girdle. The Queen, herself, it might be whispered, does not scorn the full regalia of a regulation corset and has several sets of very substantial ones in her possession.

"Appearance counts for a very great deal" is Her Majesty's firm belief, and from the views I got of her own extensive assemblage of gowns, hats, slippers, lingerie and cosmetics, I would say that she thinks that maxim is well worth investing in.

All the grandeur and magnificence of the old-time accounts of royalty's clothing—the ermine and the purple, the velvets, the silks, the diamonds and pearls, the embroideries brought from the Orient, the beauty secrets faithfully guarded by the court physician and the royal maids, the precious fabrics and priceless ornaments that go to make a queen a queen—all these Marie of Rumania has translated from their medieval settings to the pomp and circumstance of modern days. And she hasn't lost anything in the translating.

A HOST OF TRUNKS

But [illegible] crown [illegible] other paraphernalia [illegible] monarchies [illegible] ladies' boudoirs, are still [illegible].

[illegible], when from an [illegible] impressive section of the tremendous [illegible] of luggage that followed [illegible] out her travels were [illegible] to the brim with the most [illegible] assortment of gowns in the latest fashion.

She had one trunk filled entirely with bags and purses, and one [illegible] morning early, just before she went out, [illegible]

WOMEN WITH BOBBED HAIR VERY EASILY GET RID OF GRAY HAIRS

SENSIBLE ADVICE TO WOMEN TURNING GRAY

Everyone knows if their color glands and hair roots are active and normal they will continue indefinitely to have rich, natural colored hair entirely free of gray, or off-colored locks, so why use dyes or tints?

A doctor several years ago asked himself this question: "If with certain medicines I can stimulate my patient's other organs, why not rub a stimulating tonic into the scalp that will revive, strengthen and tone up these inactive glands so that nature in her own inimitable way will resume putting plenty of pigment into the hair tubes? Surely the hair will then again resume its original shade and color regardless of the users age or previous condition of their hair."

REMARKABLE DISCOVERY

He didn't want an artificial dye or tint and it of course must be harmless and something that could be used for years and years without the slightest injury to hair or scalp. Just like a tonic that builds up a [illegible] strength after some long wasting [illegible] he wanted a tonic that would revive and stimulate the inactive, weak, or dormant hair roots [illegible] glands.

Under the name of Lea's Hair Tonic anyone may now purchase the scalp food and tonic he finally perfected. For several years hair dressers and specialists have been using it. Results are so natural, gradual and nice that men as well as women use it.

It doesn't stain the scalp. One's friends seldom notice the gradual change and to test what it will do one need only apply it to some small spot for a week or two and watch results.

Men and women in all walks of life have been amazed at the younger appearance that comes with the disappearance of gray hairs from their head. Evidently one need never become gray if they keep the scalp and roots toned up with an occasional massage with Lea's Hair Tonic.

If any reader desires to try a bottle of Lea's Hair Tonic on the maker's absolute guarantee of satisfaction or money back, they should purchase a bottle at the drug store or pin a dollar bill to this advertisement and send with name and address plainly written to [illegible] Brentwood, Md. $1 bottles parcel post, anywhere with full directions.

No one need have gray or off colored hair any more.

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

WINTER days seem dull and long, waiting for the robin's song, yet through dark December's gloom men still dream of bud and bloom. Patience! In a little while soon the waking world will smile, and the roses once again lift their leaves to sun and rain. Soon the messengers of Spring to the winds their notes will fling; joyous carols will arise to the changeful April skies. He who learns from Winter's mood sees life's seasons filled with goods; in dark changes time may bring sees how Winter leads to Spring. He who waits with patient strength reaps his sure reward at length. Naught of sorrow, sting or smart harms the man with steadfast heart; he has arms invincible in the knowledge "All is well!"

DAILY SHORT STORY

CHAMELEONS

By Clyde B. Wilson

THEY leaned against the steamer rail, shoulders pressed hard together. The ship steamed cautiously in a cavern of fog and in the fear of undersea warfare. Everything above deck was damp but the man's ardour.

The woman had spoken but little tonight. Perhaps she felt, more than the man, the danger of words in a crisis of feeling. Or perhaps she knew that her companiable silence stirred the madness in him more than a multitude of speeches could have done.

Something he just had said, however, inspired her to fluency.

"But the ideal love!" she said. "Isn't this it? You and I, already with a wife and a husband are denied the common contact which is death to romance. We touch only in passing, but with complete understanding and the sense of a superior and lasting love. The despoiling cares of life have no place in our world. These things are for us to fight out and fret over with our legal husband and lawful wife. Your happiness, and mine, is secured by the very restraint we chafe under. Now, if you and I were free, do you think—?"

"I would be as mad for you as I am tonight. I do not accept your fool philosophy any more than you believe in it yourself. All I know is that I want you! If we were free I'd cross the world and take you." He grasped her by the arm. "And you are to promise me now that I always shall know where you are."

The woman trembled under the fierce pressure of his hand.

"I promise. But aren't you afraid that soon you would find yourself in the same position you now occupy with your wife? Isn't our present relation the more ideal? Isn't our love more sacred in our silent understanding than any public observance of conventional form could make it?"

He started to interrupt her, but she silenced him with a gesture.

"I must say to you, once, what is in my mind. I know—men demand realism. But won't you see, haven't you learned the cheapening effect of sure possession and uninterrupted intimacy? Is it possible in matrimony to combat the thousand and one enemies of romance and keep love and happiness constant?"

The woman burst into a laugh. "I rave like a book," she said. "But think of it! Right now the only husband I have is absorbed to his prosaic soul in a stupid game of cribbage when he might be up here making love to me—if it wasn't for the fog—on a moonlit deck. Right now your cultured wife is pretending to that long-haired Browning bug that she understands the Sonnets from the Portuguese when she ought to be exemplifying their pretty sentiment at your side—and he ought to be in the trenches."

The woman laughed again, cynically, then quickly sobered. She laid a hand on his arm as she continued.

"No," I am free to admit that I am afraid. Afraid of the cold, apathetic aftermath of marriage. I would be afraid to let you take me. Afraid that you would change your mind."

"I am afraid of nothing but the future without you," he cut in passionately. "I could listen to your fine logic of love all night because it is your voice, I hear; but I would listen without sympathy. It's all very grand, your idealistic theory—but—what I want, I want! And that makes it my right."

"What's that!" came in a gasped frightened question from the woman. She grabbed him by the arms while he strove for balance as a sickening shudder passed through the great ship. And then was crashed into their ears a sound never heard on any land. A momentary silence like death was pierced by a shriek from somewhere.

"Mine!"

And then—burstings, crashings, chaos; cries and white faces. Flashing, crackling bolts sent wireless waves in frantic appeal. A fighting, screaming, crazed mass of people was finally righted into some semblance of order by desperate officials and incessant cries of "Women and children first!" Brave men and women fought with cowards and maniacs while boats were packed and lowered. And then as a last and desperate chance men here and there jumped clear of the dragging trap.

A belated breeze broke and the fog rose from a smooth sea. Scattered here and there were ladened boats. Occasionally one of them snatched a human life from a floating timber; and occasionally an over-freighted crew turned their eyes and ears in an opposite direction.

And away in the distance a steamer left her course to hunt the distress she knew was on the high seas somewhere.

Months later [illegible] a letter with perplexed expression. The postmark was London and the address sprawled in an unfamiliar feminine hand. He slit the envelope, glimpsed the signature and barely grunted.

Nervously he turned to the beginning. It was dated eight days back.

"The armistice is signed and my work is over. I am coming home. If this information interests you, my boldness in writing is justified; if it doesn't, my boldness doesn't matter. Anyway, I promised that you should know my whereabouts. I have kept still this long only to give you a chance to think things out and decide whether or not my philosophy would stand a real test. You know you rejected it and told me I didn't believe in it myself.

"I read of the splendid work you did after putting me in a boat, the one, of course, which became lost and was picked up by a British troop ship. I also saw your own account of how, at the last minute, almost, you jumped and were picked up. My poor husband was not so fortunate. Later I learned of your great loss; the more pathetic, it seemed to me, since you had got her safely launched in a lifeboat. But the shock and exposure were terrible on all women.

"I am sailing on the Saxia tomorrow due to dock on the 16th."

The man laid the letter down, picked it up again and fingered it nervously. His gaze centered and held on a small framed photograph on his desk—the portrait of his deceased wife. Presently he pushed a button. A servant entered the room.

"Call up the Cunard offices and see when the Saxia is expected," he ordered.

While the servant was out the man sat thinking, intently, rapidly. He picked up a newspaper from the desk and ran his finger down the column of steamship movements. The servant returned.

"She's off Sandy Hook now, sir, and will dock as soon as the fog lifts."

The man bit his upper lip and drummed with his fingers for a second.

"Call them again and engage passage for me on the Ordau, sailing tomorrow," he ordered.

"Yes, sir. You have—ah, changed your mind about staying in New York this Summer, sir?"

"Yes," he answered quietly. "I have changed my mind."

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

HIGHWAY robberies were so successful in 1926 that the thugs are planning to make 1927 a banner year.

THEY'RE going in for bigger and better hold-ups.

THEY want more pedestrians and larger profits.

BULLETS are so expensive that it now costs fifteen or twenty cents to kill a man.

THEY want to get it down to two for a quarter.

MOST of the thrifty thugs are using black-jacks.

THIS makes the overhead practically nothing.

THEY'RE smart, they use their own skull as well as ours.

SEVERAL large cities now have crime schools. They teach the pupils how to part hair with a gas pipe.

THEY figure out all their problems on your skull.

ONE crook was minding his own business the other night and the principal punished him for playin hookey.

HE got in the house about t thirty and shot his wife. H said he was doing his home work.

A STUDENT of a burglar colle has to have three pardons before he can get a diploma.

How to Have Soft, Pretty White Hands

Many women will undoubtedly be glad to know how they may have beautiful white, soft, pretty hands regardless of the work they have to do. The secret lies in rubbing a little Ice-Mint into the hands occasionally, preferably just before retiring at night. In the morning you will be agreeably surprised at the pleasant transformation that has been wrought by even a single application. Ice-Mint is made from a Japanese product that is simply marvelous for its beautifying properties whether used on the hands or face. Regardless of what kind of work a woman does she should have pretty hands, as they are really the true marks of refinement. A few applications of Ice-Mint will actually make any woman proud of her hands and skin. It costs little and is sold and recommended by good druggists everywhere.

The longest street car ride in the world for one fare of 7 cents may be had in Chicago. From the south city limits, with its glimpses of green farms, to the north city limits at the edge of a forest, this ride is thirty-seven and three-tenths miles and it takes about four hours' riding. Eight transfers are necessary.

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By HELEN ROWLAND

IF a woman could realize how long it would take her to get a new head of hair or a new husband, she might not be in such a hurry to cut off the olds ones.

* * *

The average man asks a girl to give up her career to marry him, as casually as he would ask her to give up French pastry or any other little folly that was "bad for her."

* * *

When a girl starts housekeeping, the first thing she buys is a can-opener—when a man starts housekeeping, the first thing he buys is a corkscrew.

Of course, the frank, unsentimental, self-sufficient, modern girl IS wholesome! So are plain boiled potatoes, medicine, good advice, sour milk and adversity—but no man ever thought of them as "alluring."

The first sign of mental decline in a woman is her desire for a pink boudoir, a baby-blue evening gown, and a college boy's half-baked love-making.

* * *

A girl is always anxious to know where a love-affair is leading; but when a man starts in for a love-affair, he doesn't want or intend for it to lead ANYWHERE!

No man looks for his wife to return to normalcy, now, until after January first, when the shock of the incoming bills may sober her up from her "shopping jag."

* * *

A man often marries a woman just to prevent any other man from getting her; but a woman never deludes herself with the idea that she is going to prevent any other woman from getting a man, merely by marrying him.

* * *

There's a limit to everything, of course—except, the number of hats a woman thinks she wants and the number of girls a man thinks he could love!

All Help in one tablet for Colds

Modern science has developed four effective helps for colds. Now they are combined in one tablet, called HILL'S. One of the world's largest laboratories perfected the prescription. It is so well-proved, so quick and complete that we paid $1,000,000 for it.

HILL'S stops a cold in 24 hours. It checks the fever, opens the bowels, tones the entire system. It is kept ever-ready in millions of homes by people who have proved its powers.

Don't rely on lesser help. And don't delay. A cold need never develop if you keep HILL'S on hand. And it need not continue when you get it. Start it now.

AVOID DIZZY SPELLS

Never well. Always tired and fagged out. Beauty tossed away by neglect. To be beautiful and to keep youth the system must be free from poisonous backwash of constipation which often causes dizzy spells. For 20 years, Dr. F. M. Edwards gave his patients, in place of calomel, a compound of vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Known by their olive color. They free the system of poisons that ravage health, energy, beauty.

You need never have sallow complexion, dull eyes, coated tongue, throbbing headaches—all signs that your bowels are clogged, liver is torpid. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly. They act smoothly and without griping. . . How much better you'll feel and look! Everywhere wise men and women who know the value of good health take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. All druggists, 15c, 30c and 60c.

Home-made Remedy Stops Cough Quickly

Finest cough medicine you ever used. Family supply easily made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for coughs, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant—children like it.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified honey instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

A Child Doesn't Laugh and Play if Constipated

"California Fig Syrup" can't harm tender stomach, bowels

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

WALSH ENTERS RADIO FIGHT

Washington, Jan. 4 (A.P.).—While conferees on the radio control legislation still were seeking to compose Senate and House differences today, Congress continued to be flooded with petitions from various parts of the country for Federal regulation to remove the present chaos

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, called attention to conditions in the Senate and presented a petition. A number of others were sent to the desk by Senators without comment.

The conferees on the Dill and White control measures were in session for more than three hours without reaching an agreement. They expressed hope that some substantial progress might be made tomorrow.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE FAVOR BROADCASTING LAW

The following resolution, passed by the executive committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, was forwarded to Massachusetts Senators and Representatives in Congress today:

"That in the opinion of the executive committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce the passage of legislation by the present Congress regulating radio broadcasting is absolutely essential."

Radio Editor,
Boston Evening American,
Winthrop Square, Boston.

I hereby register my name in protest to the chaotic radio conditions.

Sign the Coupon for Better Radio

The radio broadcasting situation is now in the hands of Congress. If this body wishes to appease public opinion it will pass adequate laws to protect the industry. But unless Congress hears from YOU, it may not act. Sign the coupon and mail it to the Radio Editor of the Boston Evening American. He will mail you a letter so written that you need simply sign it and address to your Senator or Representative at Washington. Thus for two cents you can protect the expensive radio set you purchased and make sure it will not become useless.

X-RAY

Examination, consultation, trial treatment and medicine absolutely free to all who call before Jan. 9th. The wonderful power of the X-Ray and mercury quartz light treatment is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonders in diseases of every description — catarrh, bronchitis, deafness, stomach, nerve and skin disease. No matter what your disease may be, remember Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., 18 Boylston St., will make good the above offer.

STOMACH

MISS DOROTHY OTTIGNON, RESIDING AT WILMINGTON, VERMONT, NOW EMPLOYED AT GROTON SCHOOL, GROTON, MASS., SAYS: "I had been troubled with stomach trouble for some time. My father, who is employed by the Boston & Maine R. R., now located at Ayer, Mass., had been successfully treated for stomach trouble by Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., and he took me to Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., who treated me with equal success. So I add my name to the many who recommend Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., to those who suffer from stomach trouble."

BARNES

MR. GEO. G. BARNES, ROUTE 6, E. CONCORD, N. H., SAYS: "I had suffered for a year with trouble in the region of my appendix. Had a great deal of gas, was constipated. I consulted local doctors who told me my trouble was with my bowels, but their remedies did not relieve the trouble. I read of Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., and had him treat me and his treatment helped me so much that I am pleased to recommend him to all who suffer as I did."

MOWATT

MR. W. J. MOWATT, 111 GRANITE ST., MALDEN, MASS., SAYS: "I suffered from stomach trouble for 14 years. I had been to many doctors during that time. All of them wanted me to take pills, tablets and liquid medicine, but none of them succeeded in relieving my distress. I would be attacked with such severe pains that it would double me up like a jack knife. I could not eat and was generally miserable. I read of Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., and had him treat me with his method and experienced the first relief that I had obtained in 14 years of experimenting."

Let's Go, New England

Our Glorious Past Calls on Us for More Energy, Greater Initiative; Let Us Determine to Break Some Records

Nineteen twenty-six was a gratifying year for the industry of New England. Ours was a bounteous share of the most prosperous period of the economic history of the nation.

We did well. The holiday week-end was delightful in the leisure it afforded for a review of our accomplishments.

Today New England is back on the job. The echoes of "well done" resound pleasingly in our ears. We are extremely well-satisfied with ourselves.

Fortunately for New England there is a new spirit of business in our great community. Some might call it a rebirth of the old enterprising spirit which enabled our forefathers to achieve the commercial triumphs of New England's glorious past.

It is this spirit which animates us to look at 1927 as another step toward a more glorious future. It is this spirit which would make it less gratifying if 1927 proved merely to be equally as good a business year as 1926.

This new spirit calls for more energy, greater initiative and new methods for the smashing of every possible business record which New England so commendably established during 1926.

The new spirit is not a Pollyanna, a blind optimist. It realizes that conditions may preclude better business for certain lines of industry during the new year. It insists only that every competitor enter the race of 1927 determined to "break the record."

Is there a prophet hereabouts gifted enough to foresee, at present, conditions that make such an aim unattainable?

Certainly, none will deny that New England is already off to an auspicious start. A powerful push was behind the momentum passed on by 1926—"retail distribution of merchandise through New England department stores larger than in any previous years for which records are available."

And, continuing to quote the report of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston:

"Shoe cities reported the largest value of business in 1926 for several years. Metal trade centres reported the largest value of business since wartime.

"Not so much building activity as in 1925, but with that exception there was the largest value of business since wartimes.

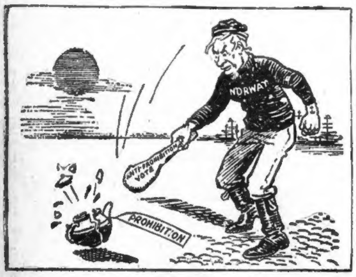
"Average Massachusetts factory did not have quite as many people on its payroll, but average weekly earnings slightly higher than in 1924."

"Business activity higher than the average of the past five years. Prices of basic raw materials declining. Loans of commercial banks at nearly the largest amount on record and money rates fairly firm."

What more could industry ask?
Let's go, New England.

Norway and Prohibition

We CAN'T DO IT



NORWAY, SMASHING PROHIBITION

Seven years ago the Norwegians thought they wanted prohibition. They voted for it.

At Norway's election of 1919 prohibition was voted IN by a majority of 184,000. Now it is voted OUT by a majority of 108,000.

Norway gave prohibition a trial, and now decides that it doesn't want any MORE of it. A referendum shows complete change of mind, Norway's Legislature, the Storthing, will pass appropriate laws, and Norwegian prohibition will be no more.

That is how it works in Norway. But it cannot work that way in the United States.

Here we have put prohibition INTO THE CONSTITUTION, and there is no way of taking it out unless three-quarters of the States would vote to change the Constitution. And that they WON'T DO.

In a Constitutional Amendment, a small State like Rhode Island, with a total population not much more than that of a few blocks of New York City, could outweigh the whole State of New York.

Southern States and agricultural States are for prohibition, will stick to it, and prohibition will STAY in the Constitution long after all those that read this are dead.

However, if the people choose, they CAN change the Volstead law. Congress can say that light wine and beer are not intoxicating, and thus, without violating the Constitution, light wine and beer could be brought back, and whiskey discouraged. As it is now, light wine and beer have been driven out, whiskey is as plentiful as ever, and school children have learned to use it.

MODERN IDEA OF A CHURCH'S BUSINESS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

UNDER the title, "The Church and Politics," an editorial was published the other day in a metropolitan daily rebuking the Methodist Church for meddling in politics.

It intimated that a church's real business was looking after men's souls and getting them to heaven, that it had no right to meddle in men's conditions.

It all depends on what you think a church is for.

The old idea is that it is the business of the church and church workers to snatch men as brands from the burning to make sure that they get out of this world into the world of bliss.

The modern idea, however, is that it is the church's business to make human life more bearable and more ideal without reference to what may happen beyond the grave.

If the church is to make men more moral and more social creatures and if it is to remove those things that render them anti-social, then the church ought to be in politics.

But if a churchman's business is simply to fold his hands piously on his breast and roll his eyes to heaven without reference to whether his brother is hungry or not, perhaps this paper's idea is correct.

It looks to us, however, as if this paper is taking a medieval point of view of this whole question.

The business of the church is to incorporate into our laws and our customs as much of the moral convictions of humanity as possible, being sure that these moral convictions are not mere opinions, but are demonstrated ways in which men can be happier and human life made better.

Perhaps it is the business of the church to make sure that people have tickets for heaven, but it seems to us that it is rather the business of the church to make this world a pleasanter place to live in and remove those evils which interfere with the welfare of mankind.

Odds and Ends of the Town

A GIFT.

JOHN RILEY, the hustling secretary of the NORWOOD HOUSING ASSOCIATION, despite his many duties, finds time to take up the study of law in Boston. He is sporting a new brief case, a gift from the firemen of NORWOOD, as a token of their appreciation for the work accomplished by JOHN in revising the by-laws of their relief association.

AVON.

JUDGE ALBERT HAYDEN of the ROXBURY COURT, who recently closed the second session of the Norfolk Criminal Court at DEDHAM, took occasion not alone to wish the citizens of the town of AVON a prosperous New Year in charging a jury, but also said that the New Year would find peace and happiness among the citizens of the town and its police department. An AVON citizen was on trial for assaulting a former police chief of the town.

MERRILY ROLLS ALONG.

JAMES H. McKENNA, 80-year-old retired police chief of WALTHAM, believes a man is only as old as he feels and acts. Chief McKenna never misses an opportunity of mixing with his former comrades at the bowling alleys. Those who have ever rolled with the gray-haired veteran agree that he "throws a mean ball," which travels at a snail's pace but has the right amount of "English" on it to do the greatest damage.

SAIL HO!

Of the membership of the BOSTON LODGE of ELKS, none feel more proud of the organization's new building on TREMONT STREET than PATROLMAN CHARLIE TIGHE of the Boston police "navy." Each time he visits the structure he is surrounded by brother ELKS, who delight in giving him the glad hand.

RING IN THE NEW.

Proof that the platinum engagement ring has replaced the gold setting despite the skeptical ones that thought it only a fad when it appeared several years ago, was shown today when one of the owners of a large BOSTON jewelry store stated that their firm had not made a single sale during 1926 of a gold engagement ring. The only instance where gold is coming back is shown in the brooch, although the platinum ones are still the favorite. Emerald rings and bracelets set with emeralds are a big favorite and rubies are also coming back strong.

ROUGH GOING.

POLICE CAPTAIN ARCHIBALD CAMPBELL of the East Boston station is an active member of the INTERCOLONIAL CLUB, ROXBURY, and heads a committee from that organization to bring about the repavement of DUDLEY STREET, from HARRISON AVENUE to BLUE HILL AVENUE. LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SEVEN years ago Edgar Wilson said to his bride—"I can't bear to have you out of my sight, darling."

Today, he can't bear to have her in his sight. They communicate through their lawyers.

How has this tragedy come to pass? Did some unprincipled man or woman wreck their home? Did Edgar become drunken and abuse or Eloise hysterical and extravagant? No, none of these things happened.

They simply didn't "keep their distance."

But surely husbands and wives aren't supposed to "keep their distance" from each other?

Yes—that's what Edgar and Eloise believed when they started marriage, seven years ago. Wise friends had warned them of the perils of married intimacy, but no intimacy could be too close or constant for their enamoured spirits.

Only the grim demands of business parted them during the day. When they were home together they were inseparable. If Eloise went to get a drink of water, Edgar followed her. If Edgar mended the screen door Eloise stood beside him and held the nails.

While Eloise brushed her teeth, Edgar shaved.

Vacations apart? Horrors, no! It was, to be sure, a little inconvenient, for Edgar had always gone off to a hunting lodge with three other chaps. And Eloise had visited her girl friends who kept a Summer resort — and Edgar hated Summer resorts. But they compromised by going to the Summer resort.

They Lost Friends.

Their mental life was just as close. Edgar told Eloise every little thing about his business. Eloise told Edgar all the neighborhood gossip and the trouble she'd had with the grocer. He told her how to vote. She told him what he should have said to the boss.

"We never keep anything from each other," they cooed in chorus.

This was sometimes a little difficult for their friends. The men soon found that they couldn't tell Wilson a thing without letting his wife in on it. And her girl friends found that they didn't dare confide in Eloise, "for she runs right to her husband."

They lost friends. They dropped out of things.

"But it doesn't matter," they laughed. "We have each other."

They had each other. For the first year it was delightful. For the next it wasn't quite so wonderful. Then the strain began to tell. Sometimes Eloise was tired and wanted to sleep alone or go to lunch with the Girls. Sometimes Edgar found himself oddly bored with feminine society and longed for the old days at the hunting lodge. Not very important matters—but did they talk them over frankly as sensible lovers should have done? No.

So It Grew..

"I'm afraid I'll hurt Edgar's feelings," whispered Eloise to herself and a little feeling of self-pity mingled with her solicitude.

"I'm afraid I'll make Eloise sore," muttered Edgar, with a prickling of resentment.

Something began and so it grew until the intimacy which had once seemed so beautiful became an abomination to them both. There was no longer any rare adventure in association—no sweet, refreshing inspiration. They had become common to each other—common and despised. They had violated the fundamental law of marriage—they had not "kept their distance."

Count Hermann Keyserling speaks of this law in his powerful new book — "THE BOOK OF MARRIAGE," which you should read. He says—"Man and woman should never endeavor to be completely merged in each other; on the contrary, the more intimate they are, the more strictly should they cherish their own individuality and it should be the unwritten law that neither should encroach on the rights of the other. In the case of highly differentiated people, conjugal happiness wholly depends on this sound principle of KEEPING ONE'S DISTANCE, and in this respect a by no means unimportant art is to sense the right time to separate for a short while."

Why Shape to Rain Drop?

By Garrett P. Serviss.

"Many times the clouds hang heavy overhead and there is no rain; other times there is very little cloud, and it rains. Why? Also, why are rain drops shaped instead of the water flowing down? What shapes snow into various forms such as stars?—M. L."

RAIN is by no means an inevitable accompaniment of clouds, not even of dark and heavy looking clouds, and this notwithstanding the fact that, as Professor Cleveland Abbe has said, rain is physically the ultimate step in the formation of cloud.

This step is oftener not taken than taken. Clouds from which no rain falls might be likened to seeds that never mature, or never germinate.

Clouds consist of minute particles of condensed water vapor, which are so small and so light that they remain afloat in the air. When these particles by accumulation become too large and heavy, the force of the earth's gravity upon them overcome the buoyant effects of the surrounding atmosphere, and they fall toward the ground with accelerated velocity.

The size of common raindrops varies from two to four millimeters in diameter (a milimeter being about 1-25th of an inch), while the weight of the largest drops does not, according to McAdie, exceed 1-5th of a gram.

If they weighed as much as gunshot, the inhabitant of the earth, in rainy weather, would be an unhappy as field birds when the shooting season opens.

You probably wonder what causes the drops to form. That is still somewhat of a puzzle for science. Various tentative explanations have been offered, all of which may contain a part of the truth. The formation of the drops is partly mechanical, the smaller particles being forced into union in consequence of wind and air currents brushing them about.

Vertical movements in the clouds due to differences of temperature may cause the minute particles to coalesce. Opposite electric charges distributed among the particles would also serve to draw them together. Sometimes, during thunderstorms, gushes of rain are observed to follow after violent thunder peals, and this might be explained as the result either of electric action or of mechanical agitation in the cloud, or of both, perhaps.

It is known that fine dust particles serves as nuclei upon which the water vapor in a cloud may condense into raindrops. It has been proved that in perfectly dustless air the condensation into drops takes place much more slowly.

However, nuclei do form even in the absence of dust, and experiment has shown that ultra-violet radiation tends to produce such nuclei.

Snow is crystallized water vapor, as rain is liquified water vapor. When the condensation of the vapor occurs below the freezing point, snow crystals form instead of rain drops.
